PROTEST MADE AGAINST NEW METER RULES

City Objects That They Would Permit Hughes
Company to Take Much Money

CASE IS REOPENED

Railroad Commission Hears Additional Objections to Present Rates Charged

Protest against the proposed revision of the meter deposit rules announced by the Hughes Electric Company, on the ground that the company could require deposit of many thousands of dollars by consumers, was made to the board of railroad commissioners today by the city of Bismarck.

Unless the board of railroad commissioners suspend the proposed rules, they will be effective tomorrow. The city's objections, filed by C. L. Young, city attorney, follow:

"Upon request of the Board of Railroad Commissioners, the City of Bismarck desires to submit the following with reference to the meter rules proposed to be adopted by the Hughes Electric Company:

"First: Ostensibly the purpose of the proposed rules is to indemnify the utility against loss for service rendered to its consumers. If it is the intent of the rules that the deposit is required to make the consumer a temporary purchaser of the meter, they clearly are objectionable in that regard for the meters are and should be the property of the utility. Assuming that the purpose is to protect against loss, the requirement of a deposit on the part of all consumers is unwarranted and unnecessary. It may be that in certain cases the requirement of a deposit should be permitted. The proposed rules make it optional whether the utility will require a deposit in excess of $5.00 where the consumer on the average incurs a bill in excess of that sum for service furnished over a six weeks' period. If such a requirement can be left optional with the company, it can be left optional in cases where the average bill is less than $5.00. The requirement of a deposit on the part of all consumers, in the absence of necessity therefore, should not be permitted.

"Second: The same objection is applicable to the requirement of a minimum deposit for steam consumption. That too can be left optional. That is, the utility should be required to determine each case whether it will extend credit or not, the same as a grocer or druggist or clothing store in each case determine whether he shall extend credit.

"Third: If the rules should be approved by the board of railroad commissioners, and the deposit specified permitted, there should be a corresponding readjustment of the rates heretofore made respecting rates. If these deposits are required to be made, the consumers of the city will be furnishing the utility with a large part, if not all, of its working capital, and the item of working capital allowed in the existing orders should be modified accordingly.

Reopen Case
The railroad commission heard evidence today in the reopened case in which the Hughes Company seeks a much higher valuation for rate-making than it ever claimed before, and in which consumers demand a reduction in rates.

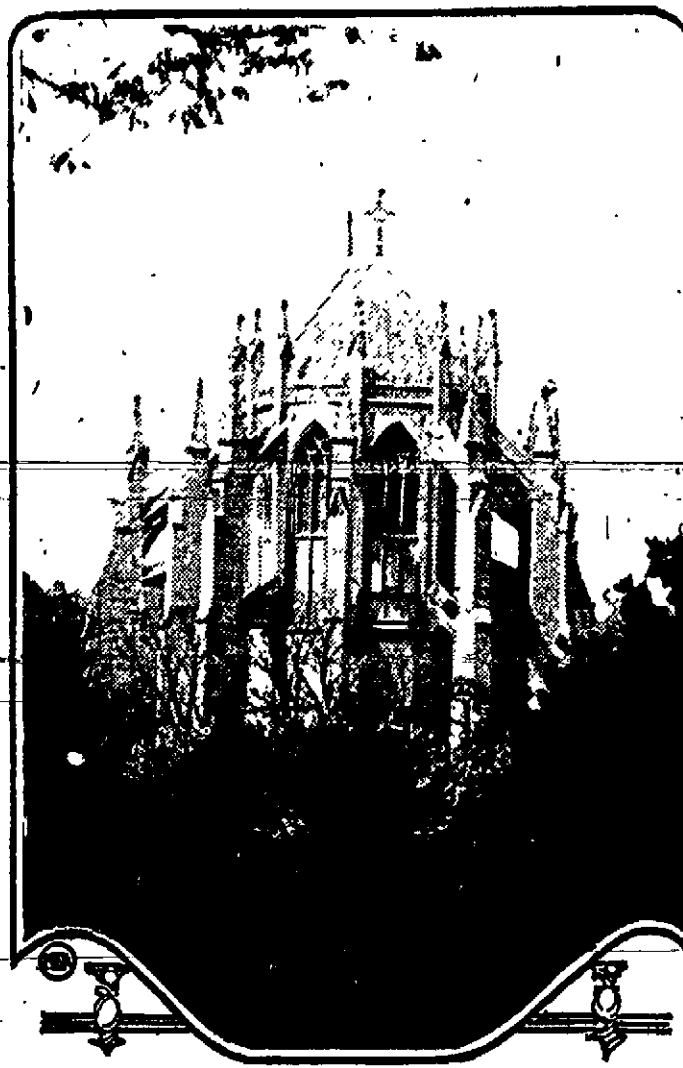

Chairman Mithell said that the hearing was reopened because it was deemed advisable to put in the record more detailed information regarding charges of the Hughes Electric Company. C. E. Martin, accountant, and E. H. Morris, engineer, were called as witnesses to expand on the record before the body. Attorneys for consumers, the city and utility appeared.

Martin read his accountant's statement. C. L. Young, city attorney, called attention to what he said appeared to be a duplication of charges—payments being made for employees' liability and workmen's compensation insurance while at the same time the company settled claims outside of these. He also asked if the five percent annual depreciation listed by the company on a brick building were not higher than usual. Answer was deferred until Mr. Morris could take the stand.

S. O. Hellstrom, attorney for consumers, inquired if the witnesses were qualified to speak upon the advisability of several charges for attorneys' fees, audit and miscellaneous expense, stating that a great increase in miscellaneous expense was shown over the previous year. The witness replied that his testimony was as to what was shown on the books and he was not expected to draw conclusions. The position was sustained by the commission chairman.

Leaders Stage Close Race.
The International League batting averages recently issued reveal one of the closest races ever staged for batting honors. Pitt finished in front with .3578, while Archibald, who led Chicago, was second with .3576.

REPUBLICANS GATHER HERE ON WEDNESDAY

Endorsement of Coolidge Candidacy Is Likely at "Real Republican" Meet

300 ARE EXPECTED

Bismarck will be the scene of the next big state-wide political post-war, on Thursday, February 11. The "Real Republican" state convention will meet here under the call of Burleigh Spaulding, chairman, for the purpose of selecting candidates for delegates to the Republican national convention and presidential electors.

The valentine which probably will be handed out on Thursday is to President Coolidge. While some believe that no endorsement of presidential candidates should be made there is every likelihood that the President will be endorsed. Probably 300 delegates will be here for the convention, which will be held in the city auditorium.

O. M. Hector, state manager for Hiram Johnson, and Richard Wilson, publicity manager, have returned to Fargo from Chicago, where they held a conference with Senator Johnson and his advisers. The Johnson men believe that their campaign will really get under way when Hiram comes into the state to speak in the very near future.

A. G. Sorlie of Grand Forks, named league candidate for Governor, was tendered a banquet in his home city Saturday night. H. H. Asker, endorsed for Congress in the First district, also was a guest. More than 60 were present, says the Grand Forks Herald. The newspaper also quotes Mr. Sorlie as saying: "The farmers and labor men have no monopoly on this program of ours."

Judge M. J. Englert of the First judicial district announces he will not be a candidate for the supreme bench last year. G. Grimsom, proprietor of the Tabernacle, has been mentioned as a candidate for the supreme bench.

8-HOUR-DAY IS VOTED FOR EXPRESS MEN

Railroad Labor Board Makes Decision in Case Pending
Before It

Chicago, Feb. 11.—The eight-hour day and time-and-one-half for overtime for express employees were authorized in a decision made public last night by the United States Railroad Labor Board. Although the Southeastern Express company is the only company named, the decision expresses the position of the board on issues also in dispute between the American Railway Express company and its 60,000 employees. Three thousand employees of the Southeastern are directly affected by the decision. Employees regarded the Southeastern dispute as a test case.

The position of the board that the eight-hour day and punitive overtime rates are "just and reasonable" for express employees is of interest to other crafts, particularly the train and engine services, whose wage movement has been met by some carriers with proposals for revision of overtime rules.

End of Strike Issues.
The question of overtime also was one of the issues in the shoe-maker's strike of 1922, which of which are still rumbling. Punitive overtime had been voluntarily recognized by some railroads for years, but was recognized as a uniform standard under the administration of Walker D. Hines, director of railroads during federal control.

Mississippi was the first state in the Union to establish an agricultural high school.

COAL MINER MEETS DEATH

Parshall, N. D., Feb. 11.—Oscar Zoffgren, manager of the coal mine about three miles north of Parshall, was brought to his home here dead, having been killed in an accident at the mine.

Just how the accident occurred is not known at this time, but it is supposed that his death is the result of a cave-in.

When he did not come home to supper at his usual time his wife became worried and parties started out to look him up. They finally arrived at the mine and found his body submerged under a huge mass of coal. Life was extinct when found.

ATTORNEYS IN DIVISION ON COUNTY COURT

Question of Whether Increased Jurisdiction Would Save Money Is Raised

MEETING IS CALLED

Bar Association of County to Meet on Thursday to Consider Action

Members of the Burleigh County Bar Association have been called in to special meeting at luncheon at the McKenize hotel on Thursday of this week to consider the question of increased jurisdiction for the county court of Burleigh county, President Benton Baker of the association said today.

The immediate subject of consideration for the meeting is the divided report of the committee named by the President at the last bar association meeting, consisting of the admissibility of increased jurisdiction. The majority of the committee of five favored increased jurisdiction while two members dissented.

If sufficient petitions are filed the matter will be submitted to a vote of the people on March 18. Under increased jurisdiction the county court would try misdemeanor cases and civil cases involving not more than $1,000.

The report of the majority of the committee favoring it is as follows: "We, your committee appointed to investigate and make recommendations upon the proposition to increase the jurisdiction of the County Court, report as follows:

"The undersigned members of the committee are of the opinion that increased jurisdiction will facilitate the administration of justice, relieve the congested calendar of the district court and save the taxpayers money. A large proportion of the cases which must now be brought in the district court may be more conveniently and expeditiously handled in a county court of increased jurisdiction and, we believe, at less expense to litigants and the public.

"We, therefore, support the proposition to grant the County Court of Burleigh county increased jurisdiction as proposed by the county commissioners for the approval of the voters." It was signed by E. T. Burke, S. L. Nuchols and E. B. Cox.

See No Gain
Two members of the committee, Alfred Zuger and F. E. McCurdy, reported as follows:

"The undersigned members of the committee do not favor the proposition to increase the jurisdiction of the county court because they believe such action will neither further the administration of justice nor save expense.

"Granting this court increased jurisdiction does not necessarily take the minor cases, concerning which complaint is made, away from the district court. Litigants would still have the right to bring and maintain such cases in the higher court. Both courts would have concurrent jurisdiction in such cases, and our observation has been that parties who are disposed to fight lawsuits prefer the district court.

"Our judgment, another court with such power will merely result in confusion, uncertainty and additional public expense."

MINOT COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Minot, N. D., Feb. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. C. Evans of Minot, aged 80 and 72 respectively, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a quiet family reunion.

Later the couple were honor guests at a party given by the Minot Women's Relief corps. Refreshments were served. Mr. Evans was presented with a C. A. R. charm and Mrs. Evans was presented with a brooch.

Mr. Evans saw much active service with the Union forces in the Civil war. He was with General Grant at the siege of Vicksburg. Once when Mr. Evans was guarding a railroad station General Grant was compelled to salute him before he was permitted to enter the station. He remembers General Grant as a man of great determination, one who seldom smiled, who generally was smoking a cigar and who was invariably plainly dressed.

2 SLAIN WHEN CONVICTS TRY PRISON BREAK

Prison Officers Are Beaten and Then Shot by Convicts

Engineering Plot

BLAST 'RIPS' WALLS
Help Is Summoned Before
Guards Are Finally Able to Subdue the Convicts

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11.—Two prison officers were shot to death and a number of convicts were wounded more or less seriously today in a riot in the western penitentiary. After an hour's fight during which riot guns, tear gas bombs, clubs and bricks were used, the prison guards, assisted by the county detectives and Pittsburgh police forces, succeeded in quelling the disturbance which started when the convicts rebelled in an effort to dynamite their way to freedom. No prisoners escaped. The dead are: William Pfeiffer, assistant deputy warden; J. A. Cox, an overseer.

Warden J. M. Egan reported that the plot was born in the minds of four or five "bad men" recently transferred to the prison here from the eastern penitentiary to be disciplined. He added that he believed the plot was engineered by a quartet of convicts known as "the four horsemen." They had help from the outside, the warden declared.

More than 1,000 prisoners had just had breakfast when the blast ripped open the main gate and a section of the wall, rocked the entire district, shattered windows and caused nearby residents to flee from their homes. Pfeiffer and Cox started on a run for the hole in the wall but were intercepted by convicts who beat them and then shot the officers with their own guns. The prison yard became a battle ground as other prisoners and other guards joined in the fight. The guards concentrated near the gates and threatening the prisoners with the sawed-off shotguns ordered them to their cells. But explosion had signaled an attempt to escape and with liberty in sight they were stubborn and showed no fight.

The prisoners in their cells added their voices in the confusion, shouting and beating upon the walls and bars and crying defiantly "here we are in the tier." A few of these convicts got loose but the guards met them hand to hand and threw them back into the cells.

Call For Help
When it became evident that the guards in the yard were not faring so well a call went out to the city and county officers were soon in the thick of the fight.

With this large force at his disposal Warden Egan took command. He stationed detectives on the walls while guards and patrolmen took up the battle in the enclosure. The patrolmen used pistols and anything lying around loose. The officers bored in and soon the convicts were backed against one of the gray stone walls. After a brief hand to hand struggle the prisoners gave up and were driven back to their cells.

Warden Egan immediately called together the prison board so that the leaders of the revolt could be punished without delay.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11.—A mysterious explosion shattered the big gates at the entrance to the western penitentiary in lower Allegheny at 9:45 o'clock this morning. It is not known whether any of the convicts escaped but Warden John Egan said over the telephone that all the guards were armed and in position to prevent any further outbreak.

A fire alarm brought several companies from the district surrounding the prison but when the firemen reached the gates they were halted by the guards. Instead of opening the doors to permit entrance of the apparatus the guards were admitted to the enclosure one at a time, indicating to those outside the walls that there was serious trouble in the prison yards.

Riot Call Sounded
A few minutes after the blast rocked the prison a riot call was sounded. All available county detectives and city patrolmen were sent to the place. Reports of firing from the (Continued on page 3)

GERMAN CLAIMS CONSIDERED

Berlin, Feb. 11.—George E. Williams and Thomas H. Creighton, representatives of the United States alien property custodian, have completed their work in Germany. They have been in Germany several months visiting various cities, and gave consideration to several thousand claims.

These were an outgrowth of the war and the subsequent seizure of German property in the United States.

MARTIAL LAW, STRIKE LOOM UP IN HERRIN

More Illinois National Guard Troops Sent to Guard Turbulent Section

MINERS THREATENING

City Is Quiet Over Sunday—Klan Employee Is Acting Chief of Police

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—Turbulent Williamson county, scene two years ago of the massacre of a score of non-union miners and later of an internecine warfare between "dry" Ku Klux Klan and "wet" anti-Klan factions today faces the prospect of a declaration of martial law and a strike of approximately 15,000 bituminous coal miners, employed in 27 mines.

It is believed generally that with the arrival of additional national guardsmen the county law enforcement will pass into hands of the military instead of having them act as now under the direction of Coroner W. H. McGowan, held to be the only county officer functioning as such.

State troops en route here will bring the total in Williamson county to approximately 1,700. The troops ordered to proceed here include the 130th infantry, composed of southern Illinois units and the 132nd infantry made up of Chicanos.

At present there are five companies of guardsmen in Herrin, three companies of infantry a machine gun company, one troop of cavalry on foot and a headquarters company at Marion and three unmounted troops of cavalry and a headquarters company at Johnston City. No untoward incident occurred last night in Williamson county, according to reports to military authorities here this morning. The troops have placed machine guns in strategic positions in three towns over which they are exercising military control and guards have been thrown about the courthouse at Marion and the city hall and hospital here.

The citizen police deputized by F. Glenn Young, acting chief of police of Herrin, and an admitted paid employee of the Ku Klux Klan, continued their patrol of Herrin streets last night and this morning. Young stated that while he had deputized about 300 such men regular police badges for that number were not available so a tin-smith fashioned a number of tin-pointed stars. It was Young who led a series of "dry" rallies in Williamson county which led to the arrest of approximately 2,600 persons and the formation of the Knights of the Flaming Circle, a faction to oppose the dry-wardens.

SHERIFF ARRESTED
Urbana, Ill., Feb. 11.—Sheriff Galligan of Williamson county and five of his deputies, arrested in connection with disorders at Herrin, were brought here last night and lodged in the Champaign county jail for safe keeping.

Sheriff John Gray of this county has questioned the legality of the move and has asked state officials for an opinion.

No Meeting
There will be no meeting of the city commission tonight, because of the absence of a majority of members from the city on business.

SHIPMENTS OF CREAM, EGGS AND

Steele, N. D., Feb. 11.—Cream shipments from Steele the past year have increased in leaps. Total shipments a year ago for January was 844 gallons while the total shipment this year for January was 1,318 gallons. The total shipments for the year 1923 on cream from Steele was 41,000 gallons.

January 1923 were 6 cars, while the shipment for the same month, this year was 16 cars. The total stock and to bring to public view and scorn and punishment every one who has betrayed the public trust of who has been guilty of wrong-doing in this humiliating and dangerous affair."

"It would be a crime against the public if the dragging of innocent people into this affair should divert attention from the guilty or prevent the discovery of those who betrayed the public interest," Mr. McAdoo said. "The whole country is shocked and appalled by what has been revealed in this investigation."

Faith Shaken.

TELLS INQUIRY BODY HE'S NOT IN LEASE CASE

Employment with E. L. Dohney was Entirely in Good Faith, He Asserts

ASKS PROSECUTION

Tells Body People's Faith in Government Is Shaken. Must be Action

Washington, Feb. 11.—Secretary Weeks, after a luncheon conference with President Coolidge during which they discussed the Robinson resolution requesting the President to ask for the resignation of Secretary Dohney, made this statement:

"So far as I know the cabinet will remain intact."

Washington, Feb. 11.—In an atmosphere surcharged with tension William G. McAdoo faced the senate oil committee today and explained his connections with the Dohney interests.

At the very outset he read a prepared statement charging that he had not been "prominently mentioned in connection with high office" his name never would have been brought into the inquiry.

He declared he had acted in perfect good faith in accepting a retainer's fee as counsel for Dohney after he left the cabinet.

In a long cross-examination reiterated forcibly his assertions that the attack on him had been purely political.

"I conceive that the matter is wholly irrelevant to the subject matter of your inquiry," he said in conclusion, "but I have been willing to come here and give these facts for such use and such value as they may have in the pursuit of your investigation."

Is Given Cheers
When he appeared in the committee room the former treasury secretary was greeted with a burst of applause for a minute or more. He smiled and bowed as he made his way to a seat to await the call of the committee.

"Do you desire to make a statement to the committee?" Chairman Lenroot asked.

Mr. McAdoo replied by reading his prepared statement.

Questioned by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, September 19, 1918, and gave up the post of director-general of the railroads on January 11, 1919. After three months of rest in California he entered the law firm of Cotton and Franklin in accordance with a previous agreement.

"When did you begin service with Mr. Dohney?" asked Senator Walsh.

"November 30, 1919," was the reply. Asked if there had been any arrangement while he was in the cabinet to enter the service of Mr. Dohney, Mr. McAdoo replied in the negative, saying he did not meet Dohney until after he retired from office. His resignation as counsel was submitted on February 2, he said—the day after Dohney testified before the committee. First the regular connection. He said he had advised Dohney only on Mexican affairs.

Washington, Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, appeared before the senate oil committee today that his professional relations with E. L. Dohney, recently terminated, were "in good faith" and had nothing to do with the leasing of Naval Oil Reserves.

Appearing at his own request because of testimony given by Mr. Dohney as to his employment in connection with the administration of Mr. McAdoo declared "I think it may fairly be presumed that if my name was not prominently in connection with high office my private practice as a lawyer would be of no interest to this committee or to the public."

Wants Prosecution.
Asserting that "the faith of the people in their own government is shaken" because of the developments in the oil industry he declared "this question transcends political parties and partisan considerations" and that "the first duty, the imperative duty of the hour is mercifully to uncover and to bring to public view and scorn and punishment every one who has betrayed the public trust of who has been guilty of wrong-doing in this humiliating and dangerous affair."

"It would be a crime against the public if the dragging of innocent people into this affair should divert attention from the guilty or prevent the discovery of those who betrayed the public interest," Mr. McAdoo said. "The whole country is shocked and appalled by what has been revealed in this investigation."

PROTEST MADE AGAINST NEW METER RULES

City Objects That They Would Permit Hughes Company to Take Much Money

CASE IS REOPENED

Railroad Commission Hears Additional Objections to Present Rates Charged

Protest against the proposed revision of the meter deposit rules announced by the Hughes Electric Company, on the ground that the company could require deposit of many thousands of dollars by consumers, was made to the board of railroad commissioners today by the city of Bismarck.

Unless the board of railroad commissioners suspends the proposed rules, they will be effective tomorrow. The city's objections, filed by C. L. Young, city attorney, follow: "Upon request of the Board of Railroad Commissioners, the City of Bismarck desires to submit the following, with reference to the meter rules proposed to be adopted by the Hughes Electric Company:

"First: Ostensibly the purpose of the proposed rules is to indemnify the utility against loss for service rendered to its consumers. If it is the intent of the rules that the deposit is required to make the consumer a temporary purchaser of the meter, they clearly are objectionable in that regard for the meters are and should be the property of the utility. Assuming that the purpose is to protect against loss, the requirement of a deposit on the part of all consumers is unwarranted and unnecessary. It may be that in certain cases the requirement of a deposit should be permitted. The proposed rules make it optional whether the utility will require a deposit in excess of $5.00 where the consumer on the average incurs a bill in excess of that sum for service furnished over a six weeks' period. If such a requirement can be left optional with the company, it can be left optional in cases where the average bill is less than $5.00. The requirement of a deposit on the part of all consumers, in the absence of necessity therefore, should not be permitted.

"Second: The same objection is applicable to the requirement of a minimum deposit for steam consumption. That too can be left optional. That is, the utility should be required to determine in each case whether it will extend credit or not, the same as a grocer or druggist or other merchant in each case determine whether he shall extend credit.

"Third: If the rules should be approved by the board of railroad commissioners, and the deposit specified permitted, there should be a corresponding readjustment of the orders heretofore made respecting rates. If these deposits are required to be made, the consumers of the city will be furnishing the utility with a large part, if not all, of its working capital and the item of working capital allowed in the existing orders should be modified accordingly.

REOPEN CASE

The railroad commission heard evidence today in the reopened case in which the Hughes Company seeks a much higher valuation for rate-making than it ever claimed before, and in which consumers demand a reduction in rates.

Chairman Millholland said that the hearing was reopened because it was deemed advisable to put in the record more detailed information regarding charges of the Hughes Electric Company. C. E. Martin, accountant, and E. H. Morris, engineer, were called as witnesses to expand on the record before the body. Attorneys for consumers, the city and utility appeared.

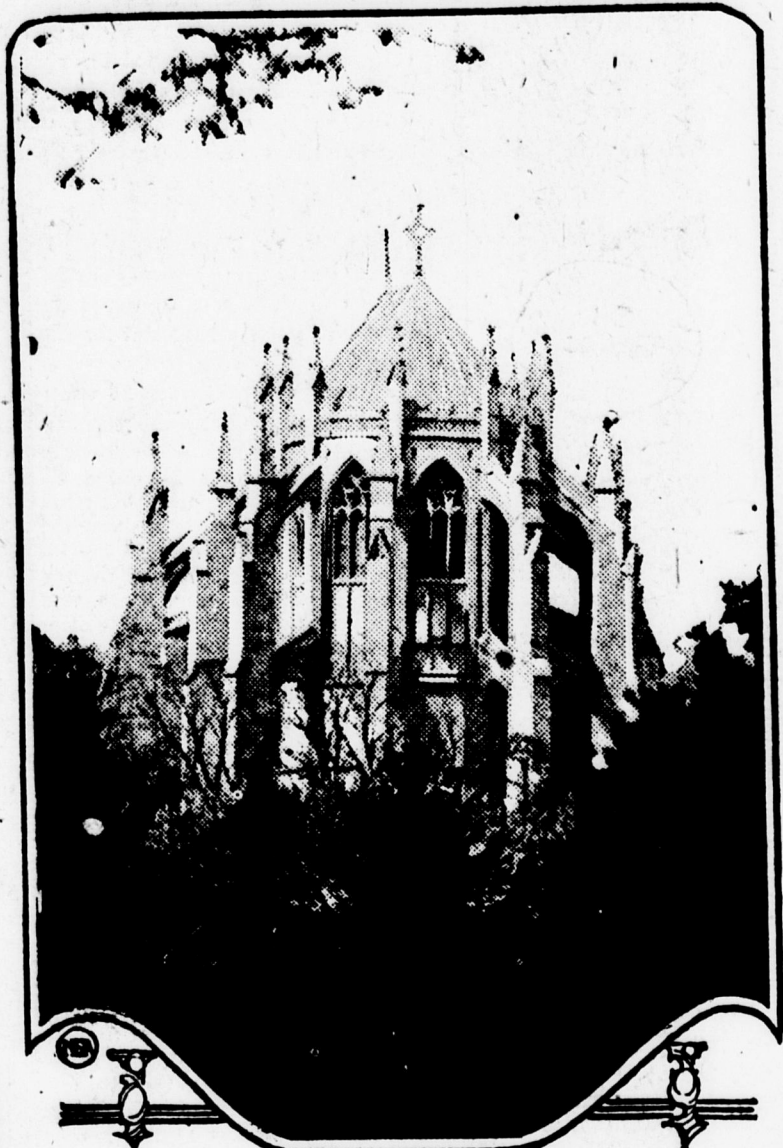

Martin read his accountant's statement. C. L. Young, city attorney, called attention to what he said appeared to be a duplication of charges—payments being made for employees' liability and Workmen's Compensation Insurance while at the same time the company settled claims outside of these. He also asked if the five percent annual depreciation listed by the company on a brick building was not higher than usual. Answer was deferred until Mr. Morris could take the stand.

S. O. Hollstrom, attorney for consumers, inquired if the witness were qualified to speak upon the advisability of several charges for attorneys' fees, audit and miscellaneous expense, stating that a great increase in miscellaneous expense was shown over the previous year. The witness replied that his testimony was as to what was shown on the books and he was not expected to draw conclusions. The position was sustained by the commission chairman.

If these deposits are required to be made, the consumers of the city will be furnishing the utility with a large part, if not all, of its working capital and the item of working capital allowed in the existing orders should be modified accordingly.

Reopen Case
The railroad commission heard evidence today in the reopened case in which the Hughes Company seeks a much higher valuation for rate-making than it ever claimed before, and in which consumers demand a reduction in rates.

Chairman Millholland said that the hearing was reopened because it was deemed advisable to put in the record more detailed information regarding charges of the Hughes Electric Company. C. E. Martin, accountant, and E. H. Morris, engineer, were called as witnesses to expand on the record before the body. Attorneys for consumers, the city and utility appeared.

Martin read his accountant's statement. C. L. Young, city attorney, called attention to what he said appeared to be a duplication of charges—payments being made for employees' liability and Workmen's Compensation Insurance while at the same time the company settled claims outside of these. He also asked if the five percent annual depreciation listed by the company on a brick building was not higher than usual. Answer was deferred until Mr. Morris could take the stand.

S. O. Hollstrom, attorney for consumers, inquired if the witness were qualified to speak upon the advisability of several charges for attorneys' fees, audit and miscellaneous expense, stating that a great increase in miscellaneous expense was shown over the previous year. The witness replied that his testimony was as to what was shown on the books and he was not expected to draw conclusions. The position was sustained by the commission chairman.

8-HOUR-DAY IS VOTED FOR EXPRESS MEN

Railroad Labor Board Makes Decision in Case Pending Before It

Chicago, Feb. 11.—The eight-hour day and time-and-one-half for overtime for express employees were authorized in a decision made public last night by the United States Railroad Labor board. Although the Southeastern Express company is the only company named, the decision expresses the position of the board on issues also in dispute between the American Railway Express company and its 60,000 employees.

The question of overtime for express employees is of interest to other crafts, particularly the train and engine services, whose wage movement has been met by some carriers with proposals for revision of overtime rules.

J. G. GUNDERSON TAX BODY HEAD, DIES AT HOME

Stricken with Paralysis Saturday Night, Former State Senator Dies Sunday

OCCURRED AFTER DINNER

Well Known Throughout State as Banker and as Taxpayers' Body Head

Fargo, Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—J. G. Gunderson, banker, aged 51 years, old president of the North Dakota Taxpayers' association and former state senator from the 17th legislative district, died suddenly at his home at Aneta Sunday morning following a paralytic stroke. He was to have celebrated his 52nd birthday anniversary tomorrow.

Mr. Gunderson was born at St. Ansgar, Iowa, February 12, 1872, and attended the public schools in his native village. He came to North Dakota in 1890 at the age of 18 and took a position as teacher in the business college at Portland. In 1891, he took a position with the Hogan Nilling Company at Northwood, acting as cashier and manager for the store until 1896 when he and N. V. Linwell of Northwood established the First National Bank of Aneta with which institution Mr. Gunderson was connected until his death, serving as president most of that time. He became interested in several other banks in this section of the state and acquired extensive farming interests.

STRICKEN SATURDAY

Aneta, N. D., Feb. 11.—J. G. Gunderson, president of the North Dakota Taxpayers' association, was stricken with paralysis Saturday evening at 6:30, shortly after Mr. Gunderson family had finished dinner.

Mr. Gunderson was reported as being in a comparatively serious condition at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Two physicians, Dr. Arne Arneson of McVillie and Dr. Bennett of Aneta, were called immediately after Mr. Gunderson's illness. He was stricken, and remained in attendance through the greater part of Saturday night.

When the stroke occurred, Mr. Gunderson was surrounded in his home here by his wife, son, J. G. Gunderson, Jr., and Laura, a daughter. He has two other daughters, one in Chicago and the other in Minneapolis.

Mrs. P. G. Storacker, a sister, of Larimore, and Geo. Magor, a brother, of Larimore, were notified of Mr. Gunderson's illness by phone Saturday night, and the two families reached here by car to be at Mr. Gunderson's bedside.

TWO INJURED IN COLLISION

Sentinel Butte Woman May Die of Injuries

Mrs. William H. Collis, about 53 years old, suffered both legs broken, right arm broken, three fractured ribs and injuries about the head which may cause death and her husband suffered a broken right leg when the buggy in which they were riding was struck by Northern Pacific train No. 1 late Saturday afternoon at Sentinel Butte. They were picked up and carried to Glendive to the Northern Pacific Hospital. Collis, who is a brother of E. G. Collis of Mandan and Hart Collis of Huff, has a ranch 12 miles southeast of Sentinel Butte. Collis lived at Sentinel Butte since 1887. Earl Collis, employed by the Dunham Lumber company, Bismarck, is a son. Another son, Ray, lives on the ranch. Latest reports said both were in serious condition.

CITIES GET BACK MONEY

Distribution Is Made By State Licensing Department

A total of $23,364.00 has been distributed to treasurers of cities and villages by the state licensing department under the law of the 1922 legislature which provided that 10 percent of the fees collected from cities and villages for licenses should be returned. The license fees are charged on pool and billiard halls, ball alley or pin alley, dance hall, theater, moving picture show, taxicab or auto livery, public hall, cigar or tobacco and soft drink stands.

The total amount of fees collected for licenses from July 1, 1923 to February 1, 1924, was $44,432.63. The largest distribution is made to Minot, which receives $1916.30. Fargo receives $1,477.70, Grand Forks $866.60, Bismarck $455.70 and Jamestown $417.90.

Mississippi was the first state in the Union to establish an agricultural high school.

COAL MINER MEETS DEATH

Parshall, N. D., Feb. 11.—Oscar Lofgren, manager of the coal mine about three miles north of Parshall, was brought to his home here dead, having been killed in an accident at the mine.

Just how the accident occurred is not known at this time, but it is supposed that his death is the result of a cave-in. When he did not come home to supper at his usual time his wife became worried and parties started out to look him up. They finally arrived at the mine and found his body submerged under a huge mass of coal. Life was extinct when found.

Question of Whether Increased Jurisdiction Would Save Money Is Raised

MEETING IS CALLED

Bar Association of County to Meet on Thursday to Consider Action

Members of the Burleigh County Bar Association have been called in to a special meeting at luncheon at the McKenzie hotel on Thursday of this week to consider the question of increased jurisdiction for the county court of Burleigh county, President Benton Baker of the association said today.

The immediate subject of consideration for the meeting is the divided report of the committee named by the President at the last bar association meeting to consider the advisability of increased jurisdiction. The majority of the committee of five favored increased jurisdiction while two members dissented.

If sufficient petitions are filed the matter will be submitted to a vote of the people on March 18. Elderly and young men, and women, are invited to attend the meeting to discuss the matter and make recommendations.

The report of the majority of the committee favoring it is as follows: "We, your committee appointed to investigate and make recommendations upon the proposition to increase the jurisdiction of the County Court, report as follows:

"The undersigned members of the committee are of the opinion that increased jurisdiction will facilitate the administration of justice, relieve the congested calendar of the district court and save the taxpayers money. A large proportion of the cases which must now be brought in the district court may be more conveniently and expeditiously handled in a county court of increased jurisdiction and, we believe, at less expense to litigants and the public.

"We, therefore, support the proposition to grant the County Court of Burleigh county increased jurisdiction as proposed by the county commissioners for the approval of the voters." It was signed by E. T. Burke, S. L. Nichols and E. B. Cox.

See No Gain

Two members of the committee, Alfred Zuger and F. E. McCurdy, reported as follows:

"The undersigned members of the committee do not favor the proposition to increase the jurisdiction of the county court because they believe such action will neither further the administration of justice nor save expenses.

"Granting this court increased jurisdiction does not necessarily take the minor cases, concerning which the majority of the committee is in favor of the proposition, out of the hands of the district court. Litigants would still have the right to bring and maintain such cases in the higher court. Both courts would have concurrent jurisdiction in such cases, and our observation has been that parties who are disposed to fight lawsuits prefer the district court.

"In our judgment, another court with such power will merely result in confusion, uncertainty and additional public expense."

MINOT COUPLE CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Minot, N. D., Feb. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. C. Evans of Minot, aged 80 and 72 respectively, recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a quiet family reunion.

Later the couple were honor guests at a party given by the Minot Women's Relief corps. Refreshments were served by a G. A. R. charm and Mrs. Evans was presented with a brooch.

Mr. Evans saw much active service with the Union forces in the Civil war. He was with General Grant at the siege of Vicksburg. Once when Mr. Evans was guarding a railway station General Grant was compelled to salute him before he was permitted to enter the station. He remembers General Grant as a man of great determination, one who seldom smiled, and who generally was smoking a cigar and who was invariably plainly dressed.

2 SLAIN WHEN CONVICTS TRY PRISON BREAK

Prison Officers Are Beaten and Then Shot by Convicts Engineering Plot

BLAST RIPS WALLS

Help Is Summoned Before Guards Are Finally Able to Subdue the Convicts

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11.—Two prison officers were shot to death and a number of convicts were wounded more or less seriously today in a riot in the western penitentiary. After an hour's fighting during which riot guns, tear gas bombs, clubs and bricks were used, the prison guards, assisted by the county detectives and Pittsburgh police forces, succeeded in quelling the disturbance which started when the convicts used explosives in an effort to dynamite their way to freedom. No prisoners escape. The dead are: William Pieffer, assistant deputy warden; J. A. Coax, an overseer.

Warden J. M. Egan reported that the plot was born in the minds of four or five "bad men" recently transferred to the prison here from the eastern penitentiary to be disciplined. He added that he believed the plot was engineered by a quartet of convicts known as "the four horsemen." They had help from the outside, the warden declared.

More than 1,000 prisoners had just had breakfast when the blast ripped open the main gate and a section of the wall, rocked the entire district, shattered windows and caused nearby residents to flee from their homes. Pieffer and Coax started on a run for the hole in the wall but were intercepted by convicts who shot them and then shot the officers with their own guns. The prison yard became a battle ground as other prisoners and other guards joined in the fight. The guards concentrated near the gates and threatening the prisoners with the saved-off shot.

But explosion had signaled an attempt to escape and with liberty in sight they were stubborn and showed no fight.

The prisoners in their cells added their voice in the confusion, shouting and beating upon the bars. Elderly and young men, and women, are invited to attend the meeting to discuss the matter and make recommendations.

GERMAN CLAIMS CONSIDERED

Berlin, Feb. 11.—George E. Williams and Thomas H. Creighton, representatives of the United States alien property custodian, have completed their work in Germany. They have been in Germany several months, visiting various cities, and gave consideration to several thousand claims.

These were an outgrowth of the war and the subsequent seizure of German property in the United States.

MARTIAL LAW, STRIKE LOOM UP IN HERRIN

More Illinois National Guard Troops Sent to Guard Turbulent Section

MINERS THREATENING

City Is Quiet Over Sunday—Klan Employee Is Acting Chief of Police

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 11.—Former Mayor T. A. Pace was arrested today on a warrant charging murder after he had been sworn in as foreman of the coroner's jury to investigate the killing Friday night of Constable Caesar Cagle, "dry" raid leader. Pace was charged with complicity in Cagle's death.

Herrin, Ill., Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—Turbulent Williamson county, scene two years ago of the massacre of a score of non-union miners and later of an internecine warfare between "dry" Ku Klux Klan and "wet" anti-Klan factions today faces the prospect of a declaration of martial law and a strike of approximately 40,000 bituminous coal miners employed in 27 mines.

It is believed generally that with the arrival of additional national guardsmen the county law enforcement will pass into hands of the military instead of having them act as now under the direction of Coroner W. H. McGowan, held to be the only county officer functioning as such.

State troops en route here will bring the total in Williamson county to approximately 1,700. The troops ordered to proceed here include the 130th infantry, composed of southern Illinois units and the 132nd infantry made up of Chicagoans.

At present there are five companies of guardsmen in Herrin, three companies of infantry, a machine gun company, a troop of cavalry on foot and a headquarters company at Marion and three unmounted troops of cavalry and a headquarters company at Johnston City. No untoward incident occurred last night in Williamson county, according to reports to military authorities here this morning. The troops have placed machine guns in strategic positions in three towns over which they are exercising military control and guards have been thrown about the courthouse at Marion and the city hall and hospital here.

The citizen police deputized by F. Glenn Young, acting chief of police of Herrin and an admitted paid employee of the Ku Klux Klan, continued their patrol of Herrin streets last night and this morning. They were not disturbed by the riot.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11.—A mysterious explosion shattered the big gates at the entrance to the western penitentiary in lower Allegheny at 9:45 o'clock this morning. It is not known whether any of the convicts escaped but Warden John Egan said over the telephone that all the guards were armed and in position to prevent any further outbreak.

A fire alarm brought several companies from the district surrounding the prison but when the firemen reached the gates they were halted by the guards. Instead of opening the doors to permit entrance of the apparatus the firemen were admitted to the enclosure one at a time indicating to those outside the walls that there was serious trouble in the prison yards.

Riot Call Sounded
A few minutes after the blast rocked the prison a riot call was sounded. All available county detectives and city patrolmen were sent to the place. Reports of firing from the prison were received.

SHIPMENTS OF CREAM, EGGS AND LIVESTOCK INCREASE AT STEELE

Steele, N. D., Feb. 11.—Cream shipments from Steele the past year has increased in leaps. Total shipment last year for January was 844 gallons while the total shipment this year for January was 1,318 gallons. The total shipments for the year 1923 on cream from Steele was 41,860 gallons for the year, with an average of a dollar per gallon. This is equivalent to $41,860.00 on cream shipments during the past year, although there has been a few months where the cream in Steele sold as high as 51 cents, which would naturally bring the average higher.

Stock shipments for the month of January 1923 were 6 cars, while the shipment for the same month this year was 16 cars. The total stock shipment for the year 1923 was 78 cars with an average of better than $1,000 per car which is equivalent to $78,000.00.

The egg and poultry shipment for the year increased 50 per cent better than last year. The aggregate amount being in the neighborhood of $21,000.

It is estimated that the total proceeds of the above farm products shipped out of Steele was better than $140,860.00 for the year of 1923.

TELLS INQUIRY BODY HE'S NOT IN LEASE CASE

Employment with E. L. Dohney was Entirely in Good Faith, He Asserts

ASKS PROSECUTION

Tells Body People's Faith in Government Is Shaken, Must be Action

Washington, Feb. 11.—Secretary Weeks, after a luncheon conference with President Coolidge during which they discussed the Robinson resolution requesting the President to ask for the resignation of Secretary Dohney, made this statement: "So far as I know the cabinet will remain intact."

Washington, Feb. 11.—In an atmosphere surcharged with tension William G. McAdoo faced the senate oil committee today and explained his connections with the Dohney interests.

At the very outset he read a prepared statement, charging that he had not been "prominently mentioned in connection with high office" and his name never would have been brought into the inquiry.

He declared he had acted in perfect good faith in accepting a retainer's fee as counsel for Dohney after he left the cabinet.

In a long cross-examination reiterated forcibly his assertions that the attack on him had been purely political.

"I conceive that the matter is wholly irrelevant to the subject matter of your inquiry," he said in conclusion, "but I have been willing to come here and give these facts for such reason and such value as they may have in the pursuit of your investigation."

Is Given Cheers
When he appeared in the committee room the former treasury secretary was greeted with a burst of applause for a minute or more. He smiled and bowed as he made his way to a seat to await the call of the committee.

"Do you desire to make a statement to the committee?" Chairman Lenroot asked.

Mr. McAdoo replied by reading his prepared statement.

Questioned by Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, September 16, 1918, and gave up the post of director-general of the railroads on January 11, 1919. After three months of rest in California he entered the law firm of Cotton and Franklin in accordance with a previous agreement.

"When did you begin service with Mr. Dohney?" asked Senator Walsh. "November 30, 1919," he replied.

Asked if there had been any arrangement while he was in the cabinet to enter the service of Mr. Dohney, Mr. McAdoo replied in the negative, saying he did not meet Dohney until after he retired from office. His resignation as counsel with the Dohney firm, he said, was the day after Dohney testifying before the committee first revealed the irregular connection. He said he had advised Dohney only on Mexican affairs.

Washington, Feb. 11.—(By the A. P.)—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, emphasized before the senate oil committee today that his professional relations with E. L. Dohney, recently terminated, were "in good faith" and had nothing to do with the leasing of Naval Oil Reserves.

Appearing at his own request because of testimony given by Mr. Dohney as to his employment in the oil industry he declared "this question transcends political parties and partisan considerations" and that "the first duty, the imperative duty of the hour is mercilessly to uncover and to bring to public view and scorn and punishment every one who has betrayed the public trust or who has been guilty of wrong-doing in this humiliating and dangerous affair."

"It would be a crime against the public if the dragging of innocent people into this affair should divert attention from the guilty or prevent the discovery of those who have betrayed the public interest," Mr. McAdoo said. "The whole country is shocked and appalled by what has been revealed in this investigation."

Faith Shaken
"The fact that a former cabinet officer of this administration is already gravely involved has raised a strong suspicion in the public mind that others may be guilty. The faith of the people in their own government is shaken and the damaging effect on public morale is so grave that the security of democratic institutions is seriously imperiled. The first duty, the imperative duty

FINAL EFFORT ON CHANGE OF TRAIL IS MADE

Bismarck Men in Minneapolis
With Others to Urge Yellowstone Trail Change.

ACTION NEXT WEEK

Trail Would be Routed From Points in South Dakota
to Bismarck

The final efforts of Montana and North Dakota business men to bring the Yellowstone National Trail through North Dakota will be made Monday and Tuesday at a national meeting of the trail association in Minneapolis. Delegates from Glendive, Montana; Dickinson, Montana; and Bismarck, North Dakota, will be present at the meeting. A. F. Brindley, secretary of the Bismarck Association of Commerce, now in Minneapolis, and other Bismarck men there attending the automobile show will remain for the meeting. A conference of all delegates was held in Minneapolis this morning to go over the work of the trail association. The work of the trail association in Montana was left, as in Minneapolis.

Along with photos of various points of interest in the trail, Mr. Murphy and Sample are armed with a brief memorandum prepared by the Glendive Chamber of Commerce setting forth every phase of the contention why the trail should be shifted northward from a point east of the Missouri river near Mohrville to Bismarck and then follow the Northern Pacific railway line through Mandan, Dickinson, Bismarck, and Glendive and reach the present route of the Yellowstone Trail at Fallon, Mont. A copy of this brief, neatly bound, indexed, and preceded by a very brief summary of its contents, will be presented to each member of the executive committee of the trail association. Every argument made in this document is supported by a compilation of facts or data to support its statements, and taken from authoritative and unquestionable sources. Thus, if the facts alone will bring about a change in the routing, the Glendive advocates are convinced they will succeed in their efforts.

Would Be Beneficial. The advocates of the change fully appreciate that a re-routing of the trail will work some hardship to the South and North Dakota towns now on that trail, and that their communities will benefit by it. But they argue that the change will benefit the trail as a whole because the new route will provide better roads, more and better cities and better general travel conditions, as well as pass through a much better territory from the agricultural, economic and scenic standpoint. They frankly admit that the change will add about 30 miles to the length of the trail in mileage. But also point out that the shortest distance between two points is always over the shortest route in miles, not over a road which will bring the traveler to his destination in quick time and after the shortest route that the latter road is not obtaining along the proposed line, the absence of terraces, steep cliffs and delays more than make up for the difference in mileage. Over every river and stream and especially across the Missouri river, the Little Missouri and the Yellowstone there is an adequate road bridge, whereas one must use a ferry to cross the Missouri river. Mohrville to use the existing trail route. The use of the ferry means at least a few hours delay and in some cases has run into several days. They compute that the new route will make in six days to two days quicker traveling than the present route through North and South Dakota.

Turning to road conditions, they point out that in Montana, the proposed route is entirely gravelled and one of the best highways in the state. This is also true of the road from Bismarck to Fallon, Mont. A large measure from Bismarck to Bismarck, they contend that the proposed route will be paved much earlier than the old route because the new line follows through the best part of North Dakota west of the Missouri river and a road is under serious consideration for a main permanent highway by the state. Nearly three times as many people live along the new route as along the old. Whereas Mohrville is the only city with over 1000 population, there are at least four cities on the other route with much larger populations. Concerning the wealth of the respective routes, the memorandum proves that there are only seven and a half million dollars of bank deposits along the old route while the new route has three and a half times that amount in its banks.

Means Better Service. Again, that Mohrville is the only city with bank deposits totalling more than a million dollars as against six cities on the other route. The same comparison is drawn concerning hotels, garages and auto repair shops, general stores, amusement places and camp grounds. Every angle of the problem has been examined thoroughly and dispassionately, and every effort put forth to prove that the change will result in a benefit to the trail association and the trail as an entirety. On the historical side as well as other points of interest are the state capital at Bismarck, "Roosevelt's cabin," Ft. Lincoln, the brickquoting plants at Hebron, Medora with its Roosevelt ranch, its petrified forest and its probable national park, the bad lands with their picturesque formations, the long bridges over the Missouri and the Yellowstone rivers, and the general upland character of the cities and paved streets and fine buildings.

The Glendive delegation are confident that success will reward their efforts since that was the first to in-

THE MISSION OF THE BOY SCOUTS

BY COLIN H. LIVINGSTONE
President.

Boy Scouts of America

"Scouts"—"scouting"—old words bursting and bristling with new meanings to every boy in all civilized lands.

He plans to be a "Scout," for he longs to be a real red-blooded, brave, clean, wide-awake, snappy boy, full of pep, knowledge and "do." He wants to cut his way to useful, forceful and resourceful manhood by new affuring paths and experiences that give him a great and broad vision of his "today."

He builds in his mind and plans a future "tomorrow." He will be the master mechanic of a successful life of service.

The oath, the laws, the program of scouting are fitted psychologically into the needs of the boy's unfolding mind and growing body.

Playing the games of boyhood with all the zest of his nature, he is being led almost unconsciously into manhood, equipped with a power of resistance against wrong thinking, wrong actions, wrong pleasures and evil associations.

His better self is freed for a successful career of helpfulness and leadership.

"Once a Scout always a Scout" is the inherent slogan of this vast army of potential citizens of a greater civilization and a mightier nation than we ever dreamed of.

Other countries—a score and a half of them—are training their boyhood under this same fascinating program.

To them, it is a universal league of boyhood and the brotherhood of man, religiously obeying the laws of the eternal God, to whom every Boy Scout in deepest reverence bows his head.

It guarantees the movement and has been the main spring of all the effort thus far spent along this line.

ANDERSON IS SENT TO PEN

Sentence to Stick Unless Appeal Succeeds

New York, Feb. 9.—William H. Anderson must go to Sing Sing prison for one or two years for third degree forgery in falsifying the books of the state anti-saloon league of which he is superintendent, unless his conviction by a jury on January 20 is reversed on appeal.

In imposing sentence, Supreme Court Justice Tompkins said "this crime was deliberately committed" and aggravated "by some of his testimony which was obviously untrue." The sentence followed an impassioned plea for clemency by former Governor Charles S. Whitman, Anderson's chief counsel, and an appeal by Ferdinand Pecora, assistant district attorney, that the punishment "be such as to satisfy the public that justice has been done and that the law is no respecter of persons."

Anderson was freed on $5,000 bail on a stay of execution to permit Mr. Whitman to seek a certificate of reasonable doubt which the trial court refused to grant. Arguments for a certificate will be heard by the court on February 15.

As he left the court room Anderson was served with papers in a $10,000 libel suit brought against the league, of which he still is superintendent, by Francis Cortwright of Corning, N. Y., who has accused the league of having libelled him in literature distributed throughout the district in which he was a candidate for the state assembly in 1922.

HAS RESIGNED

Gloversville, N. Y., Feb. 9.—The resignation of W. H. Anderson as superintendent of the anti-saloon league of New York was accepted at a meeting of the league's board of directors in New York City last Tuesday. The announcement was made today by the Rev. William C. Spicer, vice-president of the league, and pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Gloversville.

Vance Starts South. "Daddy" Vance, strikeout king of the National League, is the first ball player to start south. The Brooklyn twirler is on route to Florida in his "River." His destination is Clearwater, where the Dodgers will train. Due to the uncertainties of touring in a "river" Vance believes in getting an early start.

CRACK BOWLERS IN ACTION

St. Paul, Feb. 9.—Out-of-town bowlers will get their first crack at the pins in the final shift today at the International Bowling Association's 16th annual tournament here after a 24-hour monopoly by Minneapolis and St. Paul rollers.

In the opening shifts of the tournament last night, participated in by 32 five-man teams from the Twin Cities, top honors went to the J. A. Fagerlie team of Minneapolis with 2,692, one pin ahead of the Minneapolis Y. M. C. A. Five. Three singles and three double shifts were on today's guard with two shifts in the five-man event set for tonight. It is in the 9:30 p. m. event that outside teams will get into action. These teams are from Green Bay, Fargo, Chicago, St. Cloud, Mankato, Superior and Austin.

MINE WATER LEVEL SINKS

10 to 14 Days, However, To Be Required for Draining

Crosby, Minn., Feb. 9.—Flow of water from the mud lake into the flooded Milford iron mine near here which contains the bodies of 41 drowned miners, stopped late yesterday and within a few hours the water in the shaft had sunk to the 51-foot level. This is a total drop of 36 feet according to measurements taken in the shaft when the water was highest.

Engineers are greatly heartened over the new turn of events which is the first important in their favor since the disaster occurred late Tuesday. They believe that the opening to the ill-fated pit has been closed by the muck and sand forming a cement-like wall. This barrier, it is felt, with the water removed from the lake will be able to withstand the reduced pressure and keep the pit closed.

The water as it now stands in the shaft is just 84 feet above the 136-foot level where it is believed most of the trapped miners perished. Approval of the plan of action adopted by the Milford Mining company, operators of the Milford mine, was given late by a party of mining men after inspecting the project. This plan is to drain mud lake which at the best will require 10 to 14 days, and then pump the water from the shaft.

BISMARCK'S JUVENILE BAND

It is necessary to have the whole-hearted cooperation of the community to make the Juvenile Band a success. Seventy or more students of the public schools are receiving free musical instruction through the cooperative efforts of the Bismarck Board of Education and the Association of Commerce. Thirty-five of the most advanced of these will appear in a free municipal concert at the Auditorium on the afternoon and evening of February 14. These youthful musicians have been holding almost daily practices so as to give a creditable performance. The Auditorium should be packed to the roof for both appearances.

The chief object of those who have interested themselves in the development of this band is educational. It will take probably several years to produce a band that will meet all requirements, but Bismarck is on the right path musically in taking these youthful musicians and affording them adequate instruction.

Not much money is needed to finance this project. To date the Bismarck Juvenile Band has not made one solicitation for funds except in the form of ticket sales for the various benefits but in each of these instances the production was worth the price asked.

In view of the fact that residents of Bismarck have responded so well in the past, it was thought advisable to make the first band concert a free affair with a silver offering for those who care to contribute to the support of this most worthy project.

As time goes on and the public shows an increasing appreciation of the efforts being put forward, this city will have a musical organization whose fame will spread through the state and reflect the civic spirit for which Bismarck is so well known.

Support the Juvenile Band by all means.

THE FLAW

The ability to "get along" genially with other people is absolutely essential in the battle for success. The longer you watch the careers of people you know, the more you will be impressed with the fact that the man who is hard to get along with labors under a tremendous handicap.

Occasionally you find a man with a bad temper, or otherwise objectionable disposition, who has somehow managed to become highly successful. But this man is the exception. And if you wait long enough, you'll see him destroyed by his inability to get along with others. Such a man has succeeded in spite of his disposition. He would have progressed further if he had been more likable.

Life is a pretty hard game. Most people have big natural handicaps—of ability, lack of powerful influence and money. But one of the greatest assets a man can have is a pleasant disposition. It costs nothing. It helps mightily. Pleasantness is not always a natural gift. It can be developed, by self-control.

A pack of wolves is always led by the one that can fight and whip any of his followers. That originally was the army system—the best fighter led the band of warriors. So with kings—the strongest and best fighter ruled the rest. We are, fortunately, considerably advanced from that state. Life now is a co-operative proposition. And the man who is unable to subordinate himself on behalf of the mutual endeavor is doomed to lose out.

The individual is never as important as the organization. The star player is the man who primarily wants the team to win.

Pleasant disposition is oil for the machinery. Unpleasant disposition is sand in the gears. And gears grind sand to powder.

TWENTY-TWO POUND BABY

Did you read about the 22-pound baby born recently in New York City? Every woman on earth would be interested in this baby—walk blocks to see it. It's a girl, Rosa. When she came into the world she was 26 inches tall, nearly 16 inches around the chest. A delightful baby, healthy, cooing, gurgling.

If you want to break up a dry discussion of politics, just mention this baby.

Babies in general can't get too much attention. They later, will shoulder, and possibly solve, the frightful mess our generation has made of the world's affairs.

The mother of the baby is 46 years old. She already had 10 children. In all, 11.

Almost a marvel, that figure, in our generation. Turn back in a family album and you find that the mother of 11 in former times was not exceptional enough to attract any attention.

There'd be just as big average families now, if parents had the money. High cost of living is the real reason for race suicide.

ROAD-RUNNERS

For every yes, there's a no. For every poison, an antidote. For every evil influence, a counteracting agent. Consider, for instance, the "road-runner" of the southwest. Swift bird, runs like a baby ostrich.

Spying a rattlesnake asleep, the road-runner plucks pieces of cactus, piles them like a wide fence around Mr. Rattler. The poisonous snake awakens. If he tries to spring out, the thorns of the cactus rip him. Inside the cactus fence, he dies—like man in civilization.

SNAKES PECULIAR

Snakes are peculiar, have queer ways. You'll recall, snakes are very old—one became famous in the Garden of Eden with Adam and Eve.

Old Cap Hill once told us that a man in the desert could keep snakes away from him by sleeping in a circle of horse-hair tied together. The idea is that a rattler won't cross the hair—that it tickles his "tummy."

Nature has mysterious ways.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE DRAKE MILL

The announcement following the audit made of the Drake mill, showing a gross loss by that institution of $89,678.11, will bring the question to the minds of every person in North Dakota—"What are we going to do with this institution?"

The year just closed resulted in an additional loss to be added to the original dash into red ink. Taken the first year the mill was operated by the state. The report of the accountant indicated that last year's loss was "due to the operation of the state-owned mill at Grand Forks." The vast sales of the immense mill at Grand Forks has been a tremendous factor in the milling business of the northwest. Not that it has in the slightest degree affected the price of grain to the farmer, or the price of flour to the consumer, for it has not. But it has exerted a vicious influence, for this experiment is operated with the resources not only of the state behind it, but the resources of every individual as well. Here we have an institution, competing with private business, which needs worry not the slightest if the balance at the end of the year shows a deficit for the taxpayers have to meet it.

And while the state mill at Grand Forks was crippling the operation of the little mill at Drake, owned by the same taxpayers, what was it doing to the so-called privately owned and managed mills of the state? The answer is easy, for there is only one answer.

If the state mill at Grand Forks were operated under the same rules of business that govern every other privately owned mill in North Dakota, and under those conditions secured so much business that small concerns were forced to surrender in the battle of the survival of the fittest, then there could be no complaint. In other words when the Grand Forks project pays its way entirely and is denied the privilege of putting its hand in the public treasury at the end of any month that a loss is sustained, then the men who for thirty years have owned and operated mills scattered through every county in the state will be getting a fair run for their money.

There is no justification for taxing the privately-owned industry to meet the deficit of a state-owned industry with which it is in competition.

The American idea of fair play and the square deal will never justify any such procedure.

The point has been reached when the taxpayers of this state, already burdened with high taxes, are insisting that the Grand Forks mill pay its way, including the interest on the mill bonds.—Minot Daily News.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"The laziest fellow I ever knew lay in a cornfield and grew and grew. It wasn't the scarecrow, goodness no! For why should a scarecrow care to grow?"

"He looked at the sky as he lay in the shade. That the gracefully waving corn stalks made. And he said to himself with a chuckle, 'Ah, me! The sun's the color I think I'll be.'"

"So he deepened by day to a rich dark yellow. All the time growing bigger, this lazy old fellow! Indeed it's a wonder his shiny tight jacket Didn't burst up the back with a horrible racket!"

"Summer flew by and the autumn came. And there lay old Lazybones just the same. His friends, the obligingly kind cornstalks, Were dried up and withered and stacked in shocks."

"That's the way with the world," said our Lazybones friend, "Most everything else must come to an end. But not for important folk, such as I, and the sun up there in the sky."

"I can't grow any more so I think I'll snooze. And off he dropped—not a minute to lose. But there came just then the farmer's good wife, With (what do you think?) a long, sharp knife!"

"The next day Lazybones stretched, with a yawn. 'My goodness!' he cried, 'The winter's gone! I never in all my life was so hot. Or perhaps it's a fever that I've got!'"

"With that he opened his lazy eyes. But all that he saw were six round pies. 'I knew it!' he cried, 'I'm more than the sun. For I am six and he's but one!'"

"And Jack o' Lantern on top of a post. Just grinned at heaping so silly a boast. 'Why I am only an empty head. But I know much better than that,' he said."

"Well, what's the answer, everybody?" asked the Riddle Lady when she had finished. "I think it's as easy as rolling off a log," he declared. "It's a pumpkin!"

Even Nick and Nancy kept quiet.

The dog's owner claims the pup danced on his hind legs, chased the cat and jumped out a second-story window. Then the chickens joined in. The barnyard sounded like a jazz orchestra.

That's the way with an old dog. He gets a few drinks and then runs around with the chickens.

LETTER FROM RICHARD SUMMERS TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

MY DEAR BEATRICE:
I confess I expected to receive some sort of a letter in Chicago but I hardly expected the one which you wrote me.

In the first place, Bee, I resent very much the opinion you have of Paula Perier. One would think she was a modern vamp going about annexing all men she met.

She is nothing of the kind. She is only a little woman who has had a great deal of trouble, although she tells no one of it. She has not even told me, but sometimes when she thinks that not even I am observing her, her face is particularly sad. No one could picture suffering as she does if she had agonized.

I cannot help telling you, Bee, that we seem to have grown a great ways apart in the last three months. I do not think I am wholly to blame, although I am sure it would never do to take you to Hollywood as my wife. We thought we loved each other, Bee, and because of that we came very near making a great mistake.

Don't jump at the conclusion that I am in love with Paula. I am very fond of her, yes, but even if I loved her devotedly I do not think she would return it in any way. Perhaps that is one of the great charms of Miss Perier. Men always desire the unattainable. She seems to be so sure of herself. No man in Hollywood can say that Paula Perier has given him more than a passing glance and she has had for one reason or another nearly all the men in Hollywood at her feet. I would have liked to have you meet her, Bee. Strange as it may seem I would have liked your opinion of her.

I know you are smiling as you read this, but you must remember you and I have been friends ever since we have been children and I value your opinion and judgment perhaps more than that of any other person. I know your opinion of men at the present moment is not particularly pleasant and perhaps it is true. Yet I think you are somewhat prejudiced and if I could really present my side of the question, you would have better premises from which to form conclusions.

However, I am going to accept your dictum. I am going to say goodbye. I want you to understand how ever, my dear, that perhaps I have a greater respect for you than for any other living woman, and while through a chain of peculiar circumstances I have found out that I never had a wild irresistible passion for you any more than you had for me, yet in my heart I have always known you would make me happier and more content as a wife than any other woman. I have always looked forward to our marriage.

I am fully aware you will see in the paragraph I have just written proof that I think no one woman can be all things to one man.

Perhaps you are right. Are you sure, Bee, that I could be everything and all things to you? Think! ! !

When a man has cultivated a practical and methodical habit of mind and body he pursues the accustomed tenor of his way, whatever the ferment of his spirit. Clavering's spirit was mercurial, but long since subject to his will, and it would no more have occurred to him to neglect his regular work because he was in love and a state of suspense than to put on petticoats and walk up Fifth Avenue. It might be better or worse under foreign impact, but it would be done, and all else banished for the hour.

There were times when he wrote better surrounded by the stimulations of the office; when he was neither fagged nor disturbed he worked at home. During this week of incertitudes he rose late, lunched with friends at the Sign of the Indian Chief, a restaurant where the clearest of the—men, owing to who were so excitedly sure of their cleverness that for the moment they convinced others as well as themselves—foregathered daily. Then he went to the office and wrote or talked to other men until it was time to dine. He could always be sure of companionship for the evening. On his "day off" he took a train out into the country and walked for hours.

There was a great deal of scintillating talk in his group on the significant books and tendencies of the day, and if the talk of French youth in their clubs before the Revolution may possibly have been profounder and more far-reaching in its philosophy, more formative in its plan of action, owing to a still deeper necessity for change in the social order, the very fact that these brilliant young Americans had no personal grievance but merely sharpened their wits on matters in which they were intelligent enough to take an interest, saved their cleverness from becoming morbid or distorted by passion. It was an excellent forcing-house for ideas and vocabulary.

But their most solemn causeries were upon the vital theme of The American Reputation in Letters. Past. Present. Future. This was the age of Youth. Should any of the old reputations be permitted to live on—save in the favor of the negligible public? If so, which? All the recent reputations they would have liked to pronounce equally great, merely on account of their commendable newness; but they were too conscientious for that. They appraised, debated, rejected, finally placed the seal of their august approval upon a favored few. Clauses were arranged apparatus inherited from hard-drinking Southern ancestors. Altogether, he gave himself little time for thought, and if he felt at times an inclination to dream he thrust it from him with an almost superstitious fear. He would speculate no longer, but neither would he run the risk of invoking the laughter of cynical gods. If unimaginable disaster awaited him, at least he would not weaken his defenses by a sojourn in the paradise of fools.

He avoided Oglethorpe and Dinwiddle, and although he had engaged himself to dine at the Goodriches on Thursday night he sent an excuse.

On Thursday morning, as he was turning over the pages of one of the newspapers his eye was arrested by the name Zattiany. He never read Society paragraphs, but that name would leap to his eyes anywhere. The announcement was as brief as "social notes." "Mrs. Oglethorpe gives a luncheon tomorrow at her house in Gramercy Park to the Countess Zattiany of Vienna."

So! She had satisfied Mrs. Oglethorpe. That was one on Dinwiddle.

On the following night he bought himself an admission ticket to the Metropolitan Opera House and entered at the close of the second act. As he had half-expected, she was in Mrs. Oglethorpe's box, and it was crowded with men. He fancied that his older friend looked both glum and amused. As for Dinwiddle, his expression was half-witted.

He went home and took a broom. Sleep, being a function, is outside the domain of the will, and he had had little of it since Tuesday. And sleep he must if he was to be in alert command of his faculties on the following night.

XXVI

Madame Zattiany stood before the long old-fashioned pier glass in her bedroom, a large cheerful room recently done over in white chintz sprayed with violets. The bright winter sun streamed in on a scene of confusion. Gowns were thrown over every chair and hats covered the bed. They all had the air of being tossed aside impatiently, as indeed they had been, and the maid with a last comprehensive look at her mistress began to gather them up and carry them to the large wardrobes in the dressing-room.

Mary regarded herself critically. She had wished (not without malice) to emphasize her youthful appearance, but not at the expense of dignity, and she felt that she had achieved the subtle combination of the frock of soft black velvet cut daintily to survive and shed their undying beams for posterity. From these judicious pronouncements there was no appeal, and the pleasant spaces of the Sign of the Indian Chief, so innocuous to the uninitiated eye, was a veritable charnel house that stank in the nostrils of the rejected; but, inconsistent even as life itself, those melancholy graves were danced over by the sprightly young feet of the elect. Sometimes there was a terrifying upheaval in one of those graves. A dismal figure fought his way out, tore off his cerements, and stalked forth, muttering: "But I stride on, austere. No hope I have, no fear," leaving a puzzled uneasiness behind him.

But for good or ill, it was a matter for congratulation that criticism was at last being taken seriously in the United States.

There was a jazz party at the studio of a hospitable girl artist where Clavering danced... until dawn."

If the public were obtuse, The future? A few, a very few, were selected from the older group, many more from the younger, in a or dained to survive and shed their undying beams for posterity. From these judicious pronouncements there was no appeal, and the pleasant spaces of the Sign of the Indian Chief, so innocuous to the uninitiated eye, was a veritable charnel house that stank in the nostrils of the rejected; but, inconsistent even as life itself, those melancholy graves were danced over by the sprightly young feet of the elect. But for good or ill, it was a matter for congratulation that criticism was at last being taken seriously in the United States.

There was a jazz party at the studio of a hospitable girl artist where Clavering danced with several of the prettiest young actresses of recent Broadway fame until dawn, and drank enough to make him as wild as the rest of the party had it not been for the seasoned pearance, but not at the expense of dignity, and she felt that she had achieved the subtle combination of the frock of soft black velvet cut daintily to survive and shed their undying beams for posterity. From these judicious pronouncements there was no appeal, and the pleasant spaces of the Sign of the Indian Chief, so innocuous to the uninitiated eye, was a veritable charnel house that stank in the nostrils of the rejected; but, inconsistent even as life itself, those melancholy graves were danced over by the sprightly young feet of the elect. Sometimes there was a terrifying upheaval in one of those graves. A dismal figure fought his way out, tore off his cerements, and stalked forth, muttering: "But I stride on, austere. No hope I have, no fear," leaving a puzzled uneasiness behind him.

She had felt some trepidation on Tuesday when she had sought out Mrs. Oglethorpe and made her explanations, but she felt none whatever at the prospect of meeting these other twelve old friends. Whether they approved or resented were indulgent or elevated their respectable noses and, intimidated, "You are no longer one of us," was a matter of profound indifference to Mary Zattiany. She would have avoided them all if it had been possible, but since she had deliberately permitted her hand to be forced she would take the situation humorously and amuse herself with whatever drama it might afford.

City Rink is Crowded Saturday Night For Event

A large crowd of spectators and skaters assembled at the ball park Saturday night to witness the first skating party of the season. The night was ideal for an outdoor program and the skaters had heaps of fun.

The benches were not delivered until it was time to start things. This is coupled with the fact that it was difficult to get the skaters to arrive in the first event, slowed up the opening number. Enthusiasm became contagious and succeeding events were heartily entered into.

The Hoskins-Meyer Company sent out a Victrola and a man to operate it. The cooperation of Messrs. French & Welch and the Sorenson hardware in furnishing shovels was given. After the opening procession series of races were held such as relay, potato race for men, one lap race for men, one lap race for boys, one lap race for girls, two lap race for men. The real fun entered in the elopement race, the women race and the chariot races. In the elopement race each couple carried a suit case to the end of the rink where they put on the clothes which were in the suit case then raced back.

Plans are under way for a dress carnival which will be held on or about the 22nd of the month. Arrangements are being made for a regular band to be on hand for this season.

To promote these ends there has been organized the Women's Central Association for Physical Culture. Experts say that jumping, long distance running, etc., will be discouraged for women, and that stress will be laid upon javelin throwing, the discus and suitable ball games.

The association is considering the question of athletic costumes for women, and is seeking a design that shall combine practical qualities with beauty and attractiveness.

Bethlehem Has Thriving Industry

London, Feb. 11.—Bethlehem is the center of an industry in mother-of-pearl, which supplies beads, rosaries, inlaid work, carvings and miscellaneous ornaments or souvenirs to all parts of the world, says the Board of Trade Journal, quoting the Palestine Commercial Bulletin.

The industry employs about 500 people who do most of the work by hand. The raw material is largely waste imported from American weapon factories, and shells from other countries.

Dies Under Auto

Aneta, N. D., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Ole Ellefson, 37, wife of Ole Ellefson, farmer of near here, was instantly killed when the auto in which she and her husband were riding, and which was being driven by Alfred Rusten, overturned pinning the occupants underneath. Mrs. Ellefson's neck was broken. The accident occurred when the driver cranked the wheels to avoid going into the ditch, with the result that a front wheel crumpled.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellefson were riding in the rear seat. Mr. Ellefson and Mr. Rusten received only minor injuries. Mr. Rusten succeeded in extricating himself and summoned help from a nearby farm.

Mr. Ellefson and wife were on their way to Aneta to assist in arranging for the funeral of Mr. Ellefson's father, Elton Olson, an old war veteran.

Beside the husband, two daughters, the aged mother, three brothers and three sisters survive the dead woman.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 11.—Memorial services for Bernard A. Hoff, former Fargoan, missionary to China who lost his life early in January as the result of a bullet wound received in a raid made on the Lutheran mission near Tsao Yang, China, will be held in all churches under the jurisdiction of the Lutheran Brethren of America on Sunday, Feb. 17. It was announced by members of the church board here.

Mr. Hoff was the first missionary to lose his life in Chinese fields under the jurisdiction of the brotherhood, it is pointed out. There has been no set program arranged by the church heads but each church will observe the day in an appropriate manner. Congregations who will hold services are in North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Montana as well as several other states.

An offering for Chinese missions will be taken in the churches on that day, which will be sent to China to continue the work.

Mr. Hoff was a son-in-law of Professor and Mrs. E. M. Brown of Grand Forks. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hoff live at Abercrombie, N. D.

interior of the stockade were taken to mean that guards were shooting over the heads of the convicts to intimidate them. So far as known there have been no casualties.

A guard at the gate told newspapermen that two men had been killed in the enclosure but he was not certain whether they were convicts or guards. At 10:45 a. m. the county detective bureau was advised that some of the convicts were armed and the reserve force held for duty in other sections of the county was rushed to the prison.

An overseer was said to have been shot and killed in the first outbreak and an assistant deputy warden killed later in the fight.

Not all of the fighting was going on in the prison yard but according to reports guards have penetrated the cells east and west of the office building and there hand to hand conflicts were in progress. A rush order was sent to hardware stores throughout the city for ammunition and at 10:40 o'clock it was being hurried to the prison in motor cars. A call for the state police was momentarily expected.

Boy Scout Week Opens Throughout Country—Bismarck Scout Movement Reviewed

HISTORY IS GIVEN

Boy Scout Week in America opened today.

Bismarck Boy Scouts and others interested in the Scout movement are celebrating the week, and are endeavoring to bring before the public the work being done in the organization.

Boy Scout Week was endorsed by Governor Nestos in a letter to S. O. LeBaron, Scout Master, Bismarck.

The following history of the Boy Scout organization in Bismarck was written by George E. Wallace of Washington, D. C., Scout Master of Troop 40:

"On February 23, 1910, the organization known as the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated. Hence we have had 14 years of scouting and sufficient time has now elapsed for us to judge the worth of the movement. The enrollment began in a very modest way but from year to year increased tremendously until now on this 14th anniversary there are approximately six hundred thousand in the organization.

"A boy is eligible to join the scouts when he has reached the age of twelve years and after service until his 18th birthday is then eligible to fill the position as Assistant Scoutmaster, and at 21 he may become a scoutmaster and be at the head of a troop of his own.

"The scouts rendered valuable assistance to the Nation during the World War. Literature of various kinds needed to be distributed and displayed. The scouts delivered 30 million pieces.

"They located over 20 million board feet of standing walnut timber to be used in aeroplane construction.

"They gathered over one hundred car loads of fruit pits to be used in making gas masks.

"The scouts worked thousands of war gardens.

"They sold $278,744,550 worth of liberty bonds. One in every twenty liberty bonds bought in the United States was sold by scouts.

"Bismarck Boys Get Medals

"In Bismarck several scouts were awarded medals by the federal government for sales of bonds and still others won recognition for sales of war saving stamps.

"The first troop to be established in Bismarck was organized by Rev. Bruce E. Jackson at the Baptist church and is now a veritable organization and one of the very best in the state. Among its members can be found the ranking eagle scout in the state. Other efficient troops have been built up in Bismarck since then, and now function strongly and do a good turn daily."

"The influence of scouting is greatly felt in the Bismarck churches, schools and Sunday schools; also on the athletic field and in the home."

J. M. Devine Extols Greatness of Martyred Civil War President to Members TELLS OF HIS RISE

The life of Abraham Lincoln and lessons to be learned from it were unfolded before the members of the Kiwanis club, at noon luncheon today, by J. M. Devine, commissioner of immigration. Mr. Devine said in part:

"Those who live in a mountain cannot see the mountain. It requires the perspective of distance to bring out the true proportions, beauty and grandeur of the mountain, as it lifts its towering proportions up to and beyond the clouds about it. So, it requires the perspective of time to bring out the great characteristics and the enduring qualities of the great figure in history, who has lived, battled, achieved and died. One who stands before a great painting, the masterpiece of a great artist, sees a wonderful and ever-changing beauty as he views it from different angles, ever portraying the work of the master hand. So it is that the student of American history views new strengths, new evidences of greatness as he studies the life of Lincoln.

"Abraham Lincoln was a man of deep emotion; broad sympathies, intense feeling, constant as a star, gentle and tender as a woman, brave as the republic in his patriotism and as wide as the universe in his humanity. The more we know of him and the nearer we get to him the bigger he grows. He surpasses all orators in eloquence, all diplomats in wisdom and the most ambitious in fame. In many respects no one in the life of this nation fills our ideals as does this simple minded, self-reliant, self-made man, who came to us as a gift of the people from the hearts, homes and forests of Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

"Born and reared in absolute poverty, surrounded on every hand with difficulties seemingly unsurmountable but, for the intervening and guiding hand of Providence, Lincoln grew every day and every year into greater intellectual power and vigor."

Suit to be Filed This Week, According to F. O. Hellstrom—Question Authority

Suit for an injunction to prevent submission of the so-called "non-party" election laws to the voters of the state on March 18 in accordance with Governor Nestos' proclamation, will be filed this week, F. O. Hellstrom, Bismarck attorney, said today.

The suit will be filed in the name of Roy Frazier and Stephen Thorbert as taxpayers. They are, respectively, chairman and secretary of the Republican state committee, and Frazier was in charge of securing signatures to petitions which held up operation of the 1923 legislature.

Mr. Hellstrom, who attended the Woodledge Democratic conference in Minot, said that the Democrats there in conference aside from that included in the official call, decided to oppose the election laws, and some money was raised to defray part of the expenses incident to the suit he will inaugurate.

To opposition to be taken in the suit by the plaintiffs is that the governor is without authority to call the election at a date other than that fixed by the constitution.

It was said that taken by Secretary of State Thomas Hall in questioning the Governor's action. The attorney general's office held the call was entirely legal.

"When the war clouds were hanging deep and dark overhead; when battle after battle was lost; when the leaders of my party in the both Congressional bodies were denouncing him in the most bitter terms daily then it was that Lincoln walked out upon the sea of public clamor and bade the waves be still. His immortal address at Gettysburg will live as long as the English language. He did not delve into books nor rattle sack libraries to get that speech, he simply looked into his great, agonizing heart, spoke what he felt and the simple majesty of its beauty was the inmost expression of his soul."

Should Remember Him.

"When Robert Bruce the heroic Scottish chieftain was about to die he called his beloved Douglas to his bedside and said, when the final hour should come, to take out his heart, put it in a golden casket and wear it faithfully on his breast. Douglas obeyed the command and when in later years in the Holy Land the stress of battle brought doubt and uncertainty he raised on high the golden casket, within which was the heart of his dead leader and holding fast the thickest of the battle fought onward to victory. So time keep within our hearts the memory of the devotion, sacrifice and death of our great Lincoln and ever stand firm in defense of those great principles for which he gave up his life."

A guard at the gate told newspapers that two men had been killed in the enclosure but he was not certain whether they were convicts or guards. At 10:15 a. m. the county detective bureau was advised that some of the convicts were armed and the reserve force held for duty in other sections of the county was rushed to the prison.Two Shot An overseer was said to have been shot and killed in the first outbreak and an assistant deputy warden killed later in the fight.Not all of the fighting was going on in the prison yard but according to reports guards have penetrated the cells east and west of the offibuilding and there hand to hand conflicts were in progress. A rush order was sent to hardware stores throughout the city for ammunition and at 10:40 o'clock it was being hurried to the prison in motor cars.
A call for the state police was momentarily expected.

OF BOY SCOUTS
IS CELEBRATEDBoy Scout Week Opens

HISTORY IS GIVEN

Boy Scout Week in America opened today.Bismarck Boy Scouts and others interested in the Scout movement are celebrating the week, and are endeavoring to bring before the public the work being done in the organization.Boy Scout Week was endorsed by Governor Nestos in a letter to S. O.
LeBaron, Scout Master, Bismarck.The following history of the Boy Scout organization in Bismarck was written by George E. Wallace of Washington, D. C., Scout Master of Troop 40:"On February 8th, 1910 the organization known as the Boy Scouts of America was incorporated. Hence we have had 14 years of scouting and sufficient time has now elapsed for us to judge the worth of the movement. The enrollment began in a very modest way but from year to year increased tremendously until now on this 14th anniversary there are approximately six hundred thousand in the organization."A boy is eligible to join the scouts when he has reached the age of twelve years and after service until his 18th birthday is then eligible to fill the position as Assistant Scoutmaster, and at 21 he may become a scoutmaster and be at the head of a troop of his own."The scouts rendered valuable assistance to the Nation during the World War. Literature of various kinds needed to be distributed and displayed. The scouts delivered 30 million pieces."They located over 20 million board feet of standing walnut timber to be used in aeroplane construction."They gathered over one hundred car loads of fruit pits to be used in making gas masks."The scouts worked thousands of war gardens."They sold $278,744,650 worth of liberty bonds. One in every twenty liberty bonds bought in the United States was sold by scouts.Bismarck Boys Get Medals
"In Bismarck several scouts were awarded medals by the federal government for sales of bonds and still others won recognition for sales of war saving stamps."The first troop to be established in Bismarck was organized by Rev.
Bruce E. Jackson at the Baptist church and is now a veritable organization and one of the very best in the state. Among its members can be found the ranking eagle scout in the state. Other efficient troops have been built up in Bismarck since then, and now function strongly and do a good turn daily."The influence of scouting is greatly felt in the Bismarck churches, schools and Sunday schools; also on the athletic field and in the home.Offering Program
"Scouting offers a program to a boy different from that offered by the church because it places him in his honor to do certain specific things found in the scout oath and law. Yet scouting and the church work hand in hand. No city in the state has better boys than those found in Bismarck. This is in part due to the teaching of the scout organization. It is the greatest builder of character and leadership in existence. The public is awake to the positive advantages of the movement.
If the scout oath and law were followed by everybody, the jails and prisons would shortly be empty and the criminal courts would have but little to do, and American womanhood would have a protector in every man and boy."INJUNCTION

submission of the so-called "nonparty" election laws to the voters of the state on March 18 in accordance with Governor Nestos' proclamation, will be filed this week, F. O. Helstrom, Bismarck attorney, said today.The suit will be filed in the name of Roy Frazier and Stephen Terhorst, as taxpayers. They are, respectively, chairman and secretary of the Republican state committee, and Frazier was in charge of securing signatures to petitions which held up operation of the laws after they were passed by the 1923 legislature.Mr. Helstrom, who attended the Woodledge Democratic conference in Minot, said that the Democrats there in conference said that they would in the official call, decided to oppose the election laws, and some money was raised to defray part of the expenses incident to the suit he will inaugurate.The position to be taken in the suit by the plaintiffs is that the government is without authority to call the election at a date other than that fixed in the petitions. This position, he said, was taken by Secretary of State Thomas Hall in questioning the Governor's action. The attorney gen-

OBSERVED BY KIWANIS CLUBJ. M. Devine Extols Greatness of Martyred Civil War
President to Members

TELLS OF HIS RISE

The life of Abraham Lincoln and lessons to be learned from it were unfolded before the members of the Kiwanis club, at noon luncheon today, by J. M. Devine, commissioner of immigration. Mr. Devine said in part:"Those who live in a mountain cannot see the mountain. It requires the perspective of distance to bring out the true proportions, beauty and grandeur of the mountain, as it lifts its towering proportions up to, and beyond the clouds about it. So to, it requires the perspective of time to bring out the great characteristics and the enduring qualities of the great figure in history, who has lived, struggled, achieved and died. One who stands before a great painting, the masterpiece of a great artist, sees never-ending and ever-changing beauties as he views it from different angles, ever portraying the work of the master hand. So it is that the student of American history views new strengths, new evidences of greatness as he studies the life of Lincoln."Abraham Lincoln was a man of deep emotion; broad sympathies, intense feeling, constant as the stars, gentle and tender as a woman, broad as the republic in his patriotism and as wide as the universe in his humanity. The more we know of him and the nearer we get to him the bigger he grows. He surpasses all orators in eloquence, all diplomats in wisdom and the most ambitious in fame. In many respects no one in the life of this nation fills our ideals
as does this wise, simple minded, self-reliant, self-made man, who came to us as a gift of the people from the hearts, homes and forests of Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.Born and reared in absolute poverty, surrounded on every hand with difficulties seemingly unsurmountable but, for the intervening and guiding hand of Providence, Lincoln grew every day and every year into greater intellectual power and vigor."Rise to Power
In speaking of his rise to power
Mr. Devine said:"In 1856 he had played no great part in the national arena nor was he a long familiar character as was Seward, Chase or Warrier, but he was not an accident any more than Cromwell was an accident, who while Elliott, Pym and Hamden were battling on the front line was developing in the background for his mighty struggle with Charles the First. When Washington was elected President of the United States he gathered the greatest men of his time about him but Jefferson with his political mastery, Hamilton with his creative genius, Adams with his haughty spirit, all acknowledged the superiority of the up-rising chief. So also did Lincoln when he became President. He gathered about him the biggest men of his day but Chase with his robust personality, Seward with his statescraft, Stanton with his political intensity and Sumner with his ripe scholarship all acknowledged that in greatness of mind and greatness of character Lincoln was greater than the greatest among them.
His great nature was big enough,
broad enough, deep enough to measure the widest possible human sympathies and to measure accurately the political forces which sway a nation."When the war clouds were hanging deep and dark overhead; when battle after battle was lost; when the leaders of this party in the both Congressional bodies were denouncing him in the most bitter terms daily then it was that Lincoln walked out upon the sea of public clamor and bade the waves be still. His immortal address at Gettysburg will live as long as the English language.
He did not delve into books nor ran-sack libraries to get that speech, he simply looked into his great big agonizing heart, spoke what he felt and the simple majesty of its beauty was the inmost expression of his soul.Should Remember Him
"When Robert Bruce the heroic Scottish chieftain was about to die he called his beloved Douglas to his side and bade him, when the final hour should come, to take out his heart, put it in a golden casket and wear it faithfully on his breast.
Douglas obeyed the command and when in later years in the Holy Land the stress of battle brought doubt and uncertainty he raised on high the golden casket, within which was his heart, put it in a golden casket and rushing into the thickest of the battle fought onward to victory. So let us as a people in this day and time keep within our hearts the memory of the devotion, sacrifice and death of our great Lincoln and ever stand firm in defense of those great principles for which he gave up his life.Going to Mandan

BISMARCK'S JUVENILE BAND

It is necessary to have the whole-hearted cooperation of the community to make the Juvenile Band a success. Seventy or more students of the public schools are receiving free musical instruction through the cooperative efforts of the Bismarck Board of Education and the Association of Commerce. Thirty-five of the most advanced of these will appear in a free municipal concert at the Auditorium on the afternoon and evening of February 14. These youthful musicians have been holding almost daily practices so as to give a creditable performance. The Auditorium should be packed to the roof for both appearances.

The chief object of those who have interested themselves in the development of this band is educational. It will take probably several years to produce a band that will meet all requirements, but Bismarck is on the right path musically in taking these youthful musicians and affording them adequate instruction.

Not much money is needed to finance this project. To date the Bismarck Juvenile Band has not made one solicitation for funds except in the form of ticket sales for the various benefits but in each of these instances the production was worth the price asked.

In view of the fact that residents of Bismarck have responded so well in the past, it was thought advisable to make the first band concert a free affair with a silver offering for those who care to contribute to the support of this most worthy project.

As time goes on and the public shows an increasing appreciation of the efforts being put forward, this city will have a musical organization whose fame will spread through the state and reflect the civic spirit for which Bismarck is so well known.

Support the Juvenile Band by all means.

THE FLAW

The ability to "get along" genially with other people is absolutely essential in the battle for success. The longer you watch the careers of people you know, the more you will be impressed with the fact that the man who is hard to get along with labors under a tremendous handicap.

Occasionally you find a man with a bad temper, or otherwise objectionable disposition, who has somehow managed to become highly successful. But this man is the exception. And if you wait long enough, you'll see him destroyed by his inability to get along with others. Such a man has succeeded in spite of his disposition. He would have progressed further if he had been more likable.

Life is a pretty hard game. Most people have big natural handicaps—of ability, lack of powerful influence and money. But one of the greatest assets a man can have is a pleasant disposition. It costs nothing. It helps mightily. Pleasantness is not always a natural gift. It can be developed, by self-control.

A pack of wolves is always led by the one that can fight and whip any of his followers. That originally was the army system—the best fighter led the band of warriors. So with kings—the strongest and best-fighter ruled the rest. We are, fortunately, considerably advanced from that state. Life now is a co-operative proposition. And the man who is unable to subordinate himself on behalf of the mutual endeavor is doomed to lose out.

The individual is never as important as the organization. The star player is the man who primarily wants the team to win.

Pleasant disposition is oil for the machinery. Unpleasant disposition is sand in the gears. And gears grind sand to powder.

TWENTY-TWO POUND BABY

Did you read about the 22-pound baby born recently in New York City? Every woman on earth would be interested in this baby—walk blocks to see it. It's a girl, Rosa. When she came into the world she was 26 inches tall, nearly 16 inches around the chest. A delightful baby, healthy, cooing, gurgling.

If you want to break up a dry discussion of politics, just mention this baby.

Babies in general can't get too much attention. They later will shoulder, and possibly solve, the frightful mess our generation has made of the world's affairs.

The mother of the baby is 46 years old. She already had 10 children. In all, 11.

Almost a marvel, that figure, in our generation. Turn back in a family album and you find that the mother of 11 in former times was not exceptional enough to attract any attention.

There'd be just as big average families now, if parents had the money. High cost of living is the real reason for race suicide.

ROAD-RUNNERS

For every evil, there's a no. For every poison, an antidote. For every influence, a counteracting agent. Consider, for instance, the "road-runner" of the southwest. Swift bird, runs like a baby ostrich.

Spying a rattlesnake asleep; the road-runner plucks pieces of cactus, piles them like a wide fence around Mr. Rattler. The poisonous snake awakens. If he tries to spring out, the thorns of the cactus rip him. Inside the cactus fence, he dies—like man in civilization.

SNAKES PECULIAR

Snakes are peculiar, have queer ways. You'll recall, snakes are very old—one became famous in the Garden of Eden with Adam and Eve.

Old Cap Hill once told us that a man in the desert could keep snakes away from him by sleeping in a circle of horse-hair tied together. The idea is that a rattler won't cross the hair—that it tickles his "tummy."

Nature has mysterious ways.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of the question. Issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

THE DRAKE MILL

The announcement following the audit made of the Drake mill, showing a gross loss by that institution of $85,073.11, will bring the question to the minds of every person in North Dakota. "What are we going to do with this institution?"

The year just closed resulted in an additional loss to be added to the original loss into red figures taken the first year the mill was operated by the state. The report of the accountant indicated that the last year's loss was "due to the operation of the state-owned mill of Grand Forks." The vast sales of the immense mill at Grand Forks has been a tremendous factor in the milling business of the northwest. Not that it has in the slightest degree affected the price of flour to the consumer, for it has not. But it has exerted a vicious influence for this experiment is operated with the resources not only of the state but of the resources of every individual as well. Here we have an institution, competing with private business, which needs worry not the slightest if the balance at the end of the year shows a deficit for the taxpayer, have to meet it.

Grand Forks was crippling the operation of the little mill at Drake, owned by the same taxpayers, what was it doing to the so-called privately owned and managed mills of the state? The answer is easy, for there is only one answer.

If the state mill at Grand Forks were operated under the same rules as business that govern every other privately owned mill in North Dakota, and under those conditions secured so much business that small concerns were forced to surrender in the battle of the survival of the fittest, then there could be no complaint. In other words, when the Grand Forks project pays its way entirely and is denied the privilege of putting its hand in the public treasury at the end of any month that a loss is sustained, then the men who for thirty years have owned and operated mills scattered through every county in the state will be getting a fair run for their money.

There is no justification for taxing the privately owned industry to meet the deficit of a similar state-owned industry with which it is in competition.

The American idea of fair play and the square deal will never justify any such procedure. The point has been reached when the tax-payers of the state, already burdened with high taxes, are insisting that the Grand Forks mill pay its way, including the interest on the mill bonds. —Minot Daily News.

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"The laziest fellow I ever knew lay in a cornfield and grew and grew. It wasn't the scarecrow, goodness no! For why should a scarecrow care to grow?"

"He looked at the sky as he lay in the shade. That the gracefully waving corn stalks made. And he said to himself with a chuckle, 'Ah, me! The sun's the color I think I'll be.'"

"So he deepened by day to a rich dark yellow. All the time growing bigger, this lazy old fellow! Indeed it's a wonder his shiny tight jacket Didn't burst up the back with a horrible racket!"

"Summer flew by and the autumn came. And there lay old Lazylones just the same. His friends, the obligingly kind corn stalks, Were dried up and withered and stacked in shocks."

"That's the way with the world, said our Lazylones friend, 'Most everything else must come to an end. But not for important folk, such as I, and the sun up there in the sky.'"

"I can't grow any more so I think I'll snooze." And off he dropped—not a minute to lose. But there came just then the farmer's good wife. With "what do you think?" a long, sharp knife!

"The next day Lazylones stretched with a yawn. 'My goodness!' he cried, 'The winter's gone! I never in all my life was so hot. Or perhaps it's a fever that I've got!'"

"With that he opened his lazy eyes. But all that he saw were six round pies. 'I knew it!' he cried, 'I'm more than the sun. For I am six and he is but one!'"

"And Jack o' Lantern on top of a post. Just grinned at hearing so silly a boast. 'Why I am only an empty head,' he said."

"Well, what's the answer, everybody?" asked the Middle Lady when she had finished. "Poker fever was the one to reply. 'I think it's as easy as rolling of a log,' he declared. 'It's a pumpkin!'"

Even Nick said Nasty kept quiet.

FIDO RUNS AROUND WITH THE CHICKENS

Some Eslington (Pa.) bootlegger dumped a quantity of prune mash on a vacant lot. A dog and a flock of chickens proceeded to do what the law says don't.

The dog's owner claims the pup danced on his hind legs, chased the cat and jumped out a second-story window. Then the chickens joined in. The barnyard sounded like a jazz orchestra.

That's the way with an old dog. He gets a few tricks and then runs around with the chickens.

LETTER FROM RICHARD SUMMERS TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW

MY DEAR BEATRICE:
I confess I expected to receive some sort of a letter in Chicago but I hardly expected the one which you wrote me.

In the first place, Bee, I resent very much the opinion you have of Paula Perier. One would think she was a modern vamp going about annexing all men she met.

She is nothing of the kind. She is only a little woman who has had a great deal of trouble, although she tells me of it. She has not even told me, but sometimes when she thinks that not even I am observing her, her face is particularly sad. No one could picture suffering as she does if she had agonized.

I cannot help telling you, Bee, that we seem to have grown a great way apart in the last three months. I do not think I am wholly to blame, although I am sure it would never do to take you to Hollywood as my wife.

We thought we loved each other, Bee, and because of that we came very near making a great mistake. Don't jump at the conclusion that I am in love with Paula. I am very fond of her, yes, but even if I loved her devotedly I do not think she would return it in any way.

Perhaps that is one of the great charms of Miss Perier. Men always desire the unattainable. She seems to be so sure of herself. No man in Hollywood can say that Paula Perier has given him more than a passing glance and she has had for one reason or another nearly all the men in Hollywood at her feet. I would have liked to have you meet her, Bee. Strange as it may seem I would have liked your opinion of her.

I know you are smiling as you read this, but you must remember you and I have been friends ever since we have been children and I value your opinion and judgment perhaps more than that of any other person.

Paula's opinion of men at the present moment is not particularly pleasant and perhaps it is true. Yet I think you are somewhat prejudiced and if I could really present my side of the question, you would have better premises from which to form conclusions.

However, I am going to accept your dictum. I am going to say goodbye. I want you to understand however, my dear, that perhaps I have a greater respect for you than for any other living woman, and while through a chain of peculiar circumstances I have found out that I never had a wild irresistible passion for you any more than you had for me, yet in my heart I have always known you would make me happier and more content as a wife than any other woman. I have always looked forward to our marriage.

I am fully aware you will see in the paragraph I have just written that I think no one woman can be all things to one man.

Perhaps you are right. Are you sure, Bee, that I could be everything and all things to you? Think!!!

When a man has cultivated a practical and methodical habit of mind and body he pursues the accustomed tenor of his way, whatever the ferment of his spirit. Clavering's spirit was metrical, but long since subject to his will, and it would no more have occurred to him to neglect his regular work because he was in love and a state of suspense than to put on petticoats and walk by Fifth Avenue. It might be better or worse under foreign impact, but it would be done, and all else banished for the hour.

There were times when he wrote better surrounded by the stimulations of the office; when he was neither topped nor disturbed by worked at home. During this week of incertitudes he rose late, lunched with friends at the Sign of the Indian Chief, a restaurant where the clearest of them—and those who were so excitedly sure of their cleverness that for the moment they convinced others as well as themselves—foregathered daily. Then he went to the office and wrote or talked to other men until it was time to dine. He could always be sure of companionship for the evening. On his "day off" he took a train out into the country and walked for hours.

There was a great deal of scintillating talk in his group on the significant books and tendencies of the day, and if the talk of French youth in their clubs before the Revolution may possibly have been profounder and more far-reaching in its philosophy, more formulaic in its plan of action, owing to a still deeper necessity for change in the social order, the very fact that these brilliant young Americans had no personal grievance but merely sharpened their wits on matters in which they were intelligent enough to take an interest, saved their cleverness from becoming mordant or distorted by passion. It was an excellent forcing-house for ideas and vocabulary.

But their most solemn casualties were upon the vital theme of The American Reputation in Letters. Past, Present, Future. This was the age of Youth. Should any of the old reputations be permitted to live on—save in the favor of the negligible public? If so, which? All the recent reputations they would have liked to see annihilated equally great, merely on account of their commendable newness, but they were too conscientious for that. They appraised, debated, rejected. Finally placed the seal of their august approval upon a favored few. Clauses were arranged.

On Thursday morning, as he was turning over the pages of one of the newspapers his eye was arrested by the name Zattiany. He never read society paragraphs, but that name would leap to his eyes anywhere. The announcement was as brief as "social notes." It was in the daily edition of the morning papers: "Mrs. Oglethorpe gives a luncheon tomorrow at her house in Gramercy Park to the Countess Zattiany of Vienna."

So! She had satisfied Mrs. Oglethorpe. That was one on Dinwiddie.

On the following night he bought himself an admission ticket to the Metropolitan Opera House and entered at the close of the second act. As he had half-expected, she was in Mrs. Oglethorpe's box, and it was crowded with men. He glanced at his older friend looked blue and amused. As for Dinwiddie, his expression was half-witted.

He went home and took a bromide. Sleep, being a function, is outside the domain of the will, and he had had little of it since Tuesday. And sleep he must if he was to be in alert command of his faculties on the following night.

XXVI

Madame Zattiany stood before the long old-fashioned pier glass in her bedroom, a large cheerful room recently done over in white chintz sprayed with violets. The bright winter sun streamed in on a scene of confusion. Gowns were thrown over every chair and hats covered the bed. They all had the air of being tossed aside impatiently, as indeed they had been, and the maid with a last comprehensive look at her mistress began to gather them up and carry them to the large wardrobes in the dressing-room.

Mary regarded herself critically. She had wished (not without malice) to emphasize her youthful appearance, but not at the expense of dignity, and she felt that she had achieved the subtle combination in the frock of soft, black velvet cut with long, sweeping lines and of an excessive simplicity; and a black velvet hat of medium size with a drooping brim that almost covered one eye. The long white gloves disappeared into her sleeves somewhere above the elbow and she wore a single string of pearls. She looked very Parisian, very elegant, as Mrs. Oglethorpe would have expressed it, and very assured. In spite of the mocking gleam in the one visible eye her face was serene and proud.

She had felt some trepidation on Tuesday when she had sought out Mrs. Oglethorpe and made her explanations, but she felt none whatever at the prospect of meeting these other twelve old friends, whether they approved or resented, were indulgent or elevated their respectable noses and, intimidated, "You are no longer one of us," was a matter of profound indifference to Mary Zattiany. She would have avoided them all if it had been possible, but since she had deliberately permitted her hand to be forced she would take the situation humorously and amuse herself with whatever drama it might afford.

if the public were obtuse. The future? A few, a very few, were selected from the older group, many more from the younger, a 1 or 2 destined to survive and shed their undying beams for posterity. From these judicious pronouncements there was no appeal, and the pleasant spaces of the Sign of the Indian Chief, so innocuous to the uninitiated eye, was a veritable charnel house that stank in the nostrils of the rejected; but, inconsistent even as life itself, those melancholy graves were danced over by the sprightly young feet of the elect. Sometimes there was a terrifying upheaval in one of those graves. A dismal figure fought his way out, tore off his cerements, and stalked forth, muttering: "But I stride on, austere. No hope I have, no fear," leaving a puzzled uneasiness behind him.

But for good or ill, it was a matter for congratulation that criticism was at last being taken seriously in the United States.

There was a jazz party at the studio of a hospitable girl artist where Clavering danced with several of the prettiest young actresses of recent Broadway fame until dawn, and drank enough to make him as wild as the rest of the party had it not been for the seasoned

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE.

Elliott Dexter, screen favorite who has appeared as lead in some of the most noteworthy films of the last year has the most interesting role of his career in "Flaming Youth," showing at the Eltinge theater for three days, commencing today, Monday.

"Flaming Youth" is an adaptation of Warner Fabian's widely read novel of the same title, which caused a sensation on account of the manner in which it treated life among a certain class of wealthy, pleasure-seeking Americans.

The play centers about the loves and lives of a modern mother and her three daughters. Dexter enacts the dramatic role of "Dr. Bobs," the man who is the confidante of the mother and the three girls and, as a member of their household, plays a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the three unconventional sisters.

The part is ideally suited to Dexter, whose career both on the stage and before the motion picture camera has been an extensive one. "Flaming Youth" is interpreted to the screen by a brilliant all-star cast. Two other screen celebrities are Colleen Moore, who will enact the leading role, and Milton Sills. The rest of the cast includes Myrtle Stedman, Sylvia Bremer, Betty Francisco, Phillips Smalley, Walter McGrath, Ben Lyon and others.

AT THE CAPITOL

Filming a picture in the primitive cattle country the one remaining stronghold of the cowpuncher that Owen Wister immortalized—has its handicaps as well as its advantages. Tom Forman made this discovery when he filmed all of the "Westerns" for the elaborate Preferred Picture.

"The Virginian," in a wildly beautiful spot in the high Sierras which is almost untouched by the hand of civilization. Here are some of the highlights of that production which will occupy the screen at the Capitol Theatre beginning tonight.

in the mountains in which the picture was filmed.

The company spent six weeks in camp, nearly eight miles from telephone or telegraph.

Most of the outdoor scenes were shot more than ten miles above sea level.

Fifty mules were constantly employed in packing supplies to the camp, an eight-hour journey from the end of the wagon road.

A mountain village was built by Director Tom Forman, who had absolute dictatorship over three hundred inhabitants.

Ninety tons of supplies, including materials, food and equipment, were carried in on the backs of mules.

Black bears raided the camp larder on two occasions.

Fifty fat steers were slaughtered and eaten. A slaughter-house was built and expert butchers employed. Florence Vidor, who plays "Molly Wood," rode more than 1,000 miles on horseback.

Owing to lack of maid service, Tom Forman, Kenneth Harlan, Florence Vidor, Russell Simpson, Pat O'Malley, Raymond Hatton and other luminaries of the company made their own beds and kept up their quarters.

Two pack mules met death by falling off the narrow trails.

One steer furnished the camp with meat for three days.

When lamb stew was on the bill of fare it took three lambs to fill the kettles.

Fifty cowboys used in the picture are real "punchers" and have been employed herding cattle in the mountains from five to twenty years.

The horsemen in the camp, including actors and cowboys, covered an aggregate average of 1,000 miles a day during the period of encampment or a distance equal to a round-the-world trip.

Miss Minnie E. Hennessy, for the last five years employed as bookkeeper for the State Highway Commission and well known in Bismarck, died at a local hospital at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The cause was a deep-seated cancer.

Miss Hennessy, previous to coming to Bismarck, was deputy treasurer and deputy auditor of Nelson county, at Lakota, for about 25 years. The body was taken to Lakota this morning for burial on Wednesday.

Miss Hennessy, who was 50 years of age, was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church. She had been seriously ill but a short time. Surviving are sisters, Mrs. E. D. Rose, Bismarck; Mrs. H. M. Hutchinson and Mrs. J. G. Jennings, Minneapolis; brothers, John of Mandan; Ivan of Tolna; Paul of Towner; Will of Minnesota. Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Rose and John Hennessy were at the bedside at time of death. Many friends at the capital called at the hospital during her illness.

They say, "I am the standard by which all other rugs are judged." The brains and genius of three generations have been woven into me. The long fine silky wool from which I have been made, comes from the backs of sheep raised in the mountainous countries of Europe and Asia. My linen back is made from the finest flax. The non-fading dyes used in my manufacture, are the most expensive in the world. I am an exact copy of an oriental rug. I am the prayer rug of the Moslem. I am the religion of the Chinese. All the folk-lore and mythology of the oriental countries have been woven into me. If I am to be the gift of your bride today, I will be there when you celebrate your diamond wedding. Children now unborn will romp over me. I will witness the marriage of your daughter and will be there to welcome the next generation. In Waterford the hounds are under the mastership of members of the family of the Marquis of Waterford. English visitors have not yet begun to come back in large numbers, but the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease among horses in England has acted as a deterrent to the sport, and the Irish hunting packs are taking advantage of this circumstance to invite English sportsmen to come to Ireland.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT GOES UPWARD AGAIN

Tendency Is Stronger on Liverpool Operations

Chicago, Feb. 11.-Profit-taking sales as well as sympathy with corn weakness led to something of a decline in wheat prices today after the market had touched new high figures for the season. The close was unsettled 1/2c to 1c to 3/4c to 1/2c lower, May and July market subsided. At one time today all three active figure deliveries, May, July and September, sold at the same.

Chicago, Feb. 11.-Owing to an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations wheat here took a decided upward swing today during the early trade with deferred deliveries reaching a new high price record for the season. The Liverpool advance was regarded as confirming need for heavy requirements abroad. Buyers were also encouraged by prospects of another decrease in the United States visible supply total and by talk about likelihood of bullish legislative developments at Washington. The opening which ranged from 3/4c to 1 1/4c to 1 1/2c higher with May $1.12 1/2 to $1.13 and July $1.12 1/2 to $1.13 was followed by continued firmness.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE

Eltinge, written favorite who appeared as lead in some of the most noteworthy films of the last year has the most interesting role of his career in "Flaming Youth," showing at the Eltinge theater for three days, commencing today, Monday.

"Flaming Youth" is an adaptation of Warner Fabian's widely read novel of the same title, which caused a sensation on account of the manner in which it treated life among a class of wealthy, pleasure-seeking Americans. The play centers about the loves and lives of a modern mother and her three daughters. Dexter enacts the dramatic role of "Dr. Bob," the man who is the confidante of the mother and the three girls and, as a prominent part in shaping the destiny of the three unconventional sisters.

The part is ideally suited to Dexter, whose career both on the stage and before the motion picture camera has been an extensive one. "Flaming Youth" is interpreted to the screen by a brilliant all-star cast. Two other screen celebrities are Colleen Moore, who will enact the leading role, and Milton Sills. The rest of the cast includes Marie Steadman, Sylvia Bremer, Betty Francisco, Phillips Smalley, Walter McGrath, Ben Lyon and others.

AT THE CAPITOL
Filming a picture in the primitive cattle country, the one remaining stronghold of the cowboy, has its handicaps as well as its advantages. Tom Forman made this discovery when he filmed all of the "exterior" for the elaborate Preferred Picture, "The Virginian," in a wildly beautiful spot in the high Sierras which is almost untouched by the hand of civilization.

Here are some of the highlights of that production which will occupy the screen at the Capitol Theatre beginning tonight.

in the mountains in which the picture was filmed.

The company spent six weeks in camp, nearly eight miles from telephone or telegraph.

Most of the outdoor scenes were shot more than ten miles above sea level.

Fifty mules were constantly employed in packing supplies to the camp, an eight-hour journey from the end of the wagon road.

A mountain village was built by Director Tom Forman, who had absolute dictatorship over three hundred inhabitants.

Ninety tons of supplies, including materials, food and equipment, were carried in on the backs of mules.

Black bears raided the camp larder on two occasions.

Fifty fat steers were slaughtered and eaten. A slaughter-house was built and expert butchers employed.

Florence Vidor, who plays "Molly Wood," rode more than 1,000 miles on horseback.

Owing to lack of maid service, Tom Forman, Kenneth Harlan, Florence Vidor, Russell Simpson, Pat O'Malley, Raymond Hutton and other members of the company made their own beds and kept up their quarters.

Two pack mules met death by falling off the narrow trails.

One steer furnished the camp with meat for three days.

When lamb stew was on the bill of fare it took three lambs to fill the pot.

Fifty cowboys, used in the picture are real "punchers" and have been employed herding cattle in the mountains from five to twenty years.

The horsemen in the camp, including actors and cowboys, covered an aggregate average of 1,000 miles a day during the period of encampment or a distance equal to a round-the-world trip.

MISS HENNESSY, STATE EMPLOYEE, DIES OF CANCER

Miss Minnie E. Hennessey, for the last five years employed as bookkeeper for the State Highway Commission and well known in Bismarck, died at a local hospital at 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The cause was a deep-seated cancer.

Miss Hennessey, previous to coming to Bismarck, was deputy treasurer and deputy auditor of Nelson county, at Lakota, for about 25 years. The body was taken to Lakota this morning for burial on Wednesday.

Miss Hennessey, who was 50 years of age, was a member of St. Mary's Catholic church. She had been seriously ill but a short time. Surviving are sisters, Mrs. E. D. Rose, Bismarck; Mrs. H. M. Hutchinson and Mrs. J. C. Jennings, Minneapolis; brothers, John of Mandan; Ivan of Tolna; Paul of Towner; Will of Minnesota. Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Rose and John Hennessey were at the bedside at time of death. Many friends at the capital called at the hospital during her illness.

I am the Whittall Rug

They say, "I am the standard by which all other rugs are judged." The brains and genius of three generations have been woven into me. The long fine silky wool from which I have been made, comes from the backs of sheep raised in the mountainous countries of Europe and Asia. My linen back is made from the finest flax. The non-fading dyes used in my manufacture, are the most expensive in the world. I am an exact copy of an oriental rug. I am the prayer rug of the Moslem. I am the religion of the Chinese. All the folk-lore and mythology of the oriental countries have been woven into me. If I am to be the gift of your bride today, I will be there when you celebrate your diamond wedding. Children now unborn will romp over me. I will witness the marriage of your daughter and will be there to welcome the next generation. I will enter into every social engagement and be bright and cheerful always. You will find me at.

VETERANS OF NORTHWEST IN HOSPITAL NEED

Legion Officer, Investigating in North Dakota, Other States, Reports

CAPACITY LACKING
The Construction of Hospital For Tuberculars Held Pressing Need

Increased hospital facilities are needed in North and South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota for veterans of the World War suffering from tubercular and mental ills, it is declared in a report made by W. T. Kroll, representative of the American Legion for the district in co-operating with the Veterans Bureau and guaranteeing the welfare of the service men. Mr. Kroll, formerly was an officer of the American Legion of North Dakota with headquarters in Fargo. Mr. Kroll was here in his investigation.

"Our minimum needs for the present and immediate future are," he says, "1. Increasing the N. P. hospital now under construction at St. Cloud, Minnesota, to a capacity of 500 beds. 2. The immediate construction of a hospital or hospitals to furnish 500 T. B.'s with modern sanatoria treatment and care."

"There are approximately 2,000 ex-service men in this district suffering from those diseases classified as Neuro-Psychiatric, and who are classified as mental cases, and approximately 5,000 others suffering from other nervous disorders," he continued.

"Of the 2,000 first mentioned, 1,500 are beneficiaries of the Bureau. Ninety men are hospitalized in Veterans' Bureau hospitals in this district under very unsatisfactory conditions. One hundred and fifty-nine are hospitalized in three state insane hospitals, and with the exceptions of 19, the conditions under which the Bureau cases for these men are terrible. One hundred and twenty-eight men are being cared for in different hospitals outside District. These figures are from the Bureau report on hospital population dated January 10, 1924 and show that the Bureau is caring for 377 demerited ex-service men which will more than fill the new hospital at St. Cloud."

"In addition there are about 250 men declared incompetent by the Bureau, who are cared for by guardians, to whom the Bureau is paying a total rating of compensation, and who are in dire need of hospital care, and who will be hospitalized as soon as relatives and guardians are assured that a proper institution has been provided."

The Veterans Bureau, he says, is endeavoring to vocationally rehabilitate about 350 men in insane hospitals of Montana, Minnesota and South Dakota but the results are discouraging, and as they become more despondent there will be greater need for hospital care."

The total number of ex-service men who are tubercular in the district composed of North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Montana is approximately 3,500, Kroll declared. There is need for hospitalization within the district of 1,975 men, he said. Many men, he said, would not accept treatment offered in hospitals in other parts of the country far removed from their homes, and consequently to secure best results he feels there is need for added tubercular hospital facilities within the district.

"The hospitals in Washington, California, Arizona, New Mexico, and North Carolina where a great number of Northwest tuberculars are hospitalized, are too far removed from the man's home to keep him in a satisfied state of mind which is so essential to his recovery from tuberculosis," said Mr. Kroll.

"In this district, very few men, if any, are given sanitarium care by the government for a reasonable period of time after they have reached the apparently 'cured' stage but are continually being sent out to their homes and put into training many months before the danger period of a recurrence has passed. The conditions under which tuberculars are hospitalized in this district at the present time are quite serious and hundreds of these men will die if care other than that which they are receiving now is not given immediately."

Time Limit On Citizenship Of Service Men

Honorably discharged service men will be given until March 3, in which to apply for naturalization papers and not have to comply with the usual requirements. It was announced last week by Clerk of Court Charles J. Fisher after receiving word from Raymond F. Crist, commissioner of naturalization.

Since the war ex-service men having an honorable discharge have been exempt from having to make a declaration of intention, from paying the usual five years' residence in the United States, from the $4 filing fee, and the usual 90 day wait from the date of filing to the date of final hearing.

As a condition for naturalization under this special statute, the applicant must appear before a naturalization examiner with his honorable discharge and two identifying witnesses for preliminary examination.

In his bulletin Mr. Crist draws attention to the provision in the act of July 19, 1919, which provides for the above departure from the regular procedure for service men and which states that the benefits of the act will continue in force only for a period of one year after the return of all of the American troops to the United States.

According to the bulletin, this one year period will expire on March 3 by reason of the fact that the last of the American troops were returned to the United States on March 3, 1923.

"The purpose of the bulletin is to sound warning to the ex-service men in your locality that if they wish to obtain the advantages of the act of July 19, 1919, before its expiration on March 3, 1924, they should get in immediate touch with nearest United States Naturalization examiner so that necessary arrangements may be made for that purpose," the bulletin states.

Waitress Who Got $20,000 Receives Many Proposals of Marriage

Letters containing proposals of marriage and offering advice as to how to spend the approximately $20,000 fortune which she recently inherited through the death of her father at Aracoma, Mont., are showing Mrs. Hilda Foss Mondou of Minot, "Waitress-Heiress." Mrs. Mondou recently became aware of the quiet through a story published in The News, telling of efforts to locate the missing heiress, bequeathed a fortune by a father who had not seen his daughter since she was a child.

The story of Mrs. Mondou's good luck received considerable publicity throughout the country and her picture was syndicated by one of the large eastern news agencies.

Three letters proposing marriage and many others containing advice as to the disposition of the estate have been received thus far by Mrs. Mondou.

New Suitors Appear
But she has ignored them all, although she admits she gets a real "kick" out of reading the missives. It seems strange that up until a few weeks ago Mrs. Mondou was the only man in the world who was interested in her, but now that she has fallen into a legacy, there are a number desirous of marrying or advising her, she laughingly remarked recently.

One of the typical letters of advice, written by a man who signs his name "Montana," and who asserts that his wife fell heir to a fortune and it "turned her head," and they were separated. The letter was written from Helena, Mont. Thus it reads:

"Dear Mrs. Mondou: Reading an article in a newspaper relative to your plight in being left a legacy and having received a lot of advice. This letter has nothing to do with marriage or investments but is the experience of a fellow creature whose wife was the recipient of a legacy of $750,000. She had similar proposals and various offers to get rich quick through numerous investments."

"The sudden wealth turned her head. Lounge lizards poisoned her against her husband. A separation resulted. Finally getting wise to her new fair weather friends she longed for her husband, who has never ceased to love her. He has had no correspondence with her for four years and will only return to her when her money is placed in sound investments."

"Stick to your husband and if you find that you must part with your money, you'll get a real 'kick' out of giving some of it to the homeless kiddies."

"Sincerely, 'Montana.'"

A Jamestown, N. D., woman proposes that the heiress contribute "a few hundred dollars" to a Bible school.

Hazleton, N. INSURANCE BUSINESS HAS QUEER RISK

London, Feb. 11.—The removal of Lloyd's insurance business from the premises occupied for 150 years recalls many interesting features in connection with this ancient corporation.

While marine insurance is still the main business, as it has been since Edward Lloyd founded it, members are prepared to underwrite practically any sort of risk, and the records of Lloyd's contain some curious entries. There is the story of one man insuring himself for $100,000 against the consequences of laying violent hands on his mother-in-law. When George II led his troops at the battle of Dettingen, the risk of his returning alive was insured against at 25 percent. In 1813 a policy for $2,000 was issued at a premium of 3 percent against Napoleon Bonaparte "ceasing to exist or being taken prisoner" within a month.

Sometimes people insure against the weather on holidays, bad crops, measles and all the ailments that is heir to; riots, elections, and standard trade affairs.

Rev. Hutcheson Calls For Support of Best Ideals

Rev. W. J. Hutcheson, formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church here and now secretary of the Masonic Service Association of North Dakota, occupied the pulpit at the church here Sunday, and in the course of his address called upon citizens of the state to stand steadfast in the interest of good citizenship and American ideals.

He complained of changing principles for the purpose of expediency. "I knew a man who held a state job under Governor John Burke and he became a Democrat," he said. "When Governor Hanna came in he became a Republican. When Governor Lynn J. Frazier and the Non-partisan League came in power he became a Non-partisan, and now that Governor Nestos is in he has become an I. V. A."

Rev. Hutcheson struck out at a publication in Bismarck which he said had been seeking to damage the character of patriotic men who had done much for Bismarck.

Influence which he said was at work in 1917 and 1918 were at work again in the attacks upon American citizens, he declared. He mentioned no names during the course of his remarks on this subject, but predicted that the people of Bismarck and the people of America ought to be awake to the fact that there are millions of persons who have come into this country and are seeking to tear down American institutions. Many of them, he asserted, are not yet to become American citizens, but want to do all they can to tear down American institutions.

Plump Ankles Lengthen Skirts

London, Feb. 11.—Because women's ankles have increased in size through the wearing of very tight shoes, dresses are to be longer in length. This is what the Paris experts have told proprietors of the principal West-end stores, and it is in the intention of fashion-creators to design dresses in such a way as to give only a slight glimpse of ankles.

F. P. Goodrich Explains Methods He Had Used in Farming Operations

In a recent visit to the city F. P. Goodrich of McKenzie told of the results which he has been receiving from diversification in farming and the good effect on marketing his corn crop on the hoof.

Mr. Goodrich had in 150 acres of corn and recently sold one hundred head of hogs. From his bunch of cattle he picked out twelve cows which he wished to dispose of as culls and twenty-two yearling steers and heifers. These he fed with corn for a number of weeks and recently shipped them to the market receiving an average net price of $44.00 per head. He thinks that this is a good price for yearlings and for the cows which he wished to discard. He also states that he does not see why North Dakota farmers will ship their cattle to South St. Paul or Chicago in an unfinished condition and let the Iowa buyers come in, purchase them, take them home, feed them corn for two or three months and then get all the profit when this might be done just as well in North Dakota.

"We have demonstrated that we can grow here practically as good corn as in South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska and we might as well sell the crop by feeding it to our own cattle and getting the results as allowing this to be done elsewhere," he says. Mr. Goodrich is a firm believer in diversification and feels that these methods are worthy of
